GERMANS ABANDON FIGHT ON FRANCE

People in Occupied Areas Ordered to Quit Policy of Passive Resistance

London, Sept. 10 (A.P.)—The populations in the occupied areas of Germany have been ordered to discontinue their passive resistance to the Frnch and Belgian authorities, according to the Central News correspondent in Berlin.

"I learn," the correspondent telegraphs, "that the German capitalists have decided to send a representative to Paris with the object of ascertaining to what extent France is prepared to make concessions to Germany.

"Direct negotiations between the two governments are believed in political circles here (in Berlin) to be imminent."

Duesseldorf, Germany, Sept. 10 (I.N.S.)—"German passive resistance in the Ruhr has entered its last phase," Gen. Degoutte, the French commander told International News Service today.

"There is no longer any real heart and swing in it.

"The Germans have been cooking their own goose—cutting their own throats. The cost of this resistance has been ruining German finances. The longer passive resistance lasts, the more difficult it will be for German industry to resume."

BEAUTY GETS KLAN THREAT

GRACE MOULTON

Cambridge woman contestant in American's recent charming girl contest, who refuses to become alarmed over letter demanding that she leave town. She is termed by leading artists "the girl with the perfect form."

Beautiful twenty-year-old Miss Grace Moulton of Cambridge, termed by leading artists as "the girl with the perfect form," has received an alleged Ku Klux Klan letter demanding that she leave town. Her mother turned the letter over to the police today.

The "perfect thirty-five" has no intention of leaving Cambridge, however, she told a Boston American reporter. Miss Moulton and her mother are both of the opinion that the threatening letter was written by a jealous woman.

"I have no intention of leaving Cambridge," said Miss Moulton "and I am not afraid of the person who wrote the threatening letter. It was signed 'Ku Klux Klan' and contained a skull and cross bones. I am of the opinion that a woman who is interested in a certain man wrote the letter to me. I believe she has a false impression that I am interested in the same young man. The fact is that I detest him."

Miss Moulton was a contestant in the Boston American's recent Charming Girl Tournament.

"I permitted my daughter to enter the American's tournament just to show the person who wrote that letter that we are not afraid," said her mother. "I have seen another anonymous letter that was written to a person about my daughter. It was of a scurrilous nature. I think both letters were written by a jealous woman."

CORCORAN CASE PUT OVER TO TUESDAY

The case of William J. Corcoran and other defendants, charged with conspiring to extort money from Max Korn and others with threats of criminal procedure, came before Judge O'Connell in the first session of Superior Criminal Court today. After a conference at the bench between Assistant District Attorney Arthur D. Hill and Joseph Walsh, counsel for the defence, a postponement until September 18 was granted.

In the same session later, former Lieutenant Governor William R. Allen of Montana and other defendants were arraigned, charged with larceny from the shareholders of the Boston-Montana Corporation. Their case was continued until October.

LAY NAVAL DISASTER TO TIDAL WAVE

Believe Reaction of Japanese Quake Wrecked 7 Destroyers, With Death Toll of 25

Washington, Sept. 10.—The theory was expressed by high naval officials today that a tidal wave or other seismic disturbance, reacting from the Japanese earthquake, caused the disaster to Destroyer Division 11 off the California coast yesterday.

A rigid investigation of the disaster will be made. The ships were valued at $10,000,000.

Santa Barbara, Cal., Sept. 10. (A.P.) — Twenty-three sailors dead and fifteen injured, seven destroyers of the Pacific squadron of the battle fle held fast between rocks off Point Arguello Light, in the Pacific Ocean, between San Francisco and Los Angeles.

These are the outstanding consequences today of the navy's major marine disaster in Pacific waters.

The injured are being nursed at hospitals here; a trainload of survivors is headed for San Diego, the naval base, while the seven ships are fast approaching total wrecks by the incessant pounding of the surf.

H. P. DISHER KILLS WIFE AND SELF

Hiley Peter Disher, who wore the uniform of an army aviator, ended the life of his beautiful millionaire wife today and then his own.

He shot Elsie Cheney Disher through the skull twice, then turned the gun on himself.

The murder and suicide occurred on her "Brookwood" estate at Egypt, Mass.

They hadn't lived together as man and wife for more than a year. Yet when Disher called to his wife to go to his room today she went. At the threshold she gazed down at the man at whose feet she had placed her life and fortune five years ago. He leaned up on an elbow.

A 45-calibre army pistol was in his hand. He pulled the trigger twice and she fell dead. Then he shot himself through the head and thrashed about in agony for more than two hours until death ended a life that had carried him as a soldier of fortune to the Philippines and back.

The murder and suicide came on the eve of the couple's separation. Mrs. Disher was worth more than a million dollars. Her folks had been famous silk manufacturers in Connecticut, it is reported. They left a fortune which was divided between the murdered woman and her brother.

On Mrs. Disher's share of the fortune the ex-flyer is said to have lived. He was a man of leisure, well clothed and fed, with several motor cars and plenty of money at his command. But he tired of it, police say, and for two years abused the woman.

BECAME MORE BRUTAL.

For a year it is said he had been drinking heavily and becoming more brutal in his treatment. Mr. Disher announced last week she was going to shut up "Brookwood" and go to Europe.

"We are through," she is alleged to have said, "you shift for yourself."

Disher recently attempted to get into active army service with the aircraft branch. He was turned down. When his wife was about to cast him off as abruptly as did Uncle Sam he evidently decided to end both their lives.

Sunday night he retired late. They had had two guests for dinner. From his room this morning he called to his wife.

Oh, Elsie, come here a moment, will you?"

SHOT IN COLD BLOOD.

She went. She left her own room

25 PERISH AS SEVEN U. S. DESTROYERS GROUND ON REEF IN FOG

WRECKED FIGHTING CRAFT IS VALUED AT $10,000,000

Mistaken position in relation to the coast line is believed to have caused the crash.

The destroyers were speeding through the fog, hugging the shore in single file formation, when they piled up on the rocks from 200 to 600 yards apart, about 200 yards off shore.

The fatalities were divided between two destroyers. Seven were from the Delphy and the others died on the destroyer Young, which turned over and sank in one minute and 37 seconds after she struck.

The other wrecked destroyers, the S. P. Lee, Nicholas, Fuller, Chauncey, and Woodbury, went aground in positions which gave their officers and crews a better chance for their lives than was afforded the crews on the other craft.

The naval wrecks came while the destroyer Reno, a member of the squadron, had left the cruising line, attracted by open boat loads of survivors from the wrecked S. S. Cuba, a passenger vessel.

TRAPPED IN THEIR BUNKS.

The Cuba went ashore off San Miguel Island, off Santa Barbara county, 12 hours before, and its survivors were picked up by the Reno, with one exception of one boat load.

This later boat was picked up by the Standard Oil tanker W. H. Miller, in the Santa Barbara Channel. Its occupants were rowing out to sea in a dense fog, under the impression they were headed for shore.

The disaster entailed a heavy financial loss, each of the destroyers being valued at $1,500,000.

The liner Cuba was reported to have sunk during the night, but all passengers and members of her crew either were landed at Los Angeles by the destroyer Reno or are on their way to San Francisco on the Standard Oil tanker W. S. Miller, with the exception of Captain C. J. Holland, the purser, steward and eight seamen, who remained on board to guard a shipment of $1,500,000 in silver bullion.

The destroyers Chauncey, Woodbury, Fuller, S. P. Lee, Nicholas, Young and Delphy were all beached within a few minutes of one another, according to naval officers.

CRASH COMES IN FOG.

The flotilla of which the wrecked craft formed a part was in command of Captain Edward Watson, commanding officer of the Delphy, and was on a practice cruise.

The dead were all trapped in their bunks on the Young, when their vessel struck and were drowned when the craft capsized within two minutes after striking.

A tragedy within a tragedy was enacted about the destroyer Delphy, one of the lost ships.

This tragedy resulted in the death of Seaman Pearson, whose given name and home, naval officers at the scene of the wreck were unable to give.

As the Delphy crashed low first into the rugged rocks near Arguello Light, Pearson was thrown down a ladder and both legs were broken. His comrades went to his rescue and succeeded in taking him on deck. There he was blinded by oil from bursting fuel pipes. Nearly crazed by pain and desperation, he resisted the efforts of shipmates to rig up a breeches buoy to rescue him.

SWEPT TO HIS DEATH.

The vessel began to break up and his comrades were forced to lash him in the hope of returning later to take him off. Other injured were taken ashore and just as the last man, except Pearson, was safe on the mainland, the Delphy broke in two and slid beneath the waves with Pearson crying for help.

Hardly a man in the train wore an entire uniform. The costume was limited to an undershirt and a pair of trousers, while some still clung to their lifebelts as an auxiliary covering.

At every station along the route from Point Concepcion south, the wardrobes of the men were augmented by offerings from sympathetic civilians.

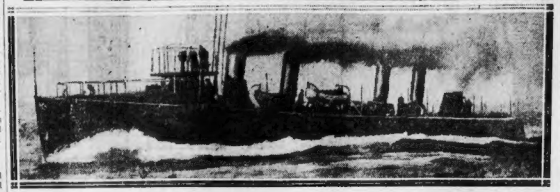
MAKE DARING RESCUES.

The seas were so heavy that it was only a few minutes after the crash that all of the destroyers were taking water.

The rescue of most of the crew of the Young was effected when Boatswain's Mate Peterson took a line overboard and swam with it to the Chauncey, fighting against the rough sea and strong tides. Peterson reached the Chauncey exhausted.

With the line secured between the two vessels, all the remaining members of the crew made their way ashore, as the Chauncey was beached on the mainland.

U. S. SHIPS' GRAVEYARD



LOCATION OF ISLANDS WHERE 7 DESTROYERS WERE WRECKED

At top, graveyard in Pacific Ocean where seven U. S. destroyers piled up in a thick fog with the loss of twenty-five lives. The ships were valued at $10,000,000 and will be a total loss. Below, U. S. S. Chauncey, one of the wrecked craft.

EX-FLIER KILLS WIFE AND ENDS HIS LIFE

and in boudoir gown and pink slippers tiptoed across the velvet-rugged hall. At his door she seeked in smiling.

Two shots another and chauffeur and guests from below came tumbling up the stairs to find her nightgowned body resting in blood and Disher in agony on the bed. Cooks and maids ran up in confusion. The frightened of the horror of the tragedy stood back, their hands clasped in supplication, their half-frozen lips mumbling prayers jerkingly.

Outside on the close-clipped lawns gardeners worked at leisure, occasionally stopping to wipe brows in the hot sunshine. From the ocean came soft breezes that stirred the American flag hanging lazily from its pole before the piazza. Graveled drives which led to the garage and servants' cottage seemed to sparkle in the bright sunshine.

HURRY FOR DOCTOR.

"A doctor. Call a doctor."

The chauffeur burst from the house, and a moment later, gardeners were in flivvers hurrying to Scituate.

"Murder, murder. It's the mistress. Tis the police you want."

The old cook was crying as she sat on the back porch.

Within ten minutes the estate which but a few moments before had seemed so placid, was like a Bedlam. Came Chief Turner and Patrolman Bidegfeldt. They seemed helpless in the midst of such luxury and confusion. Came reporters and residents from nearby. Doctors, also, and then the curious in flivvers from miles away.

Two hours passed. Disher died and guards were set up at the big stone and iron grilled gates. They tramped back and forth in newly gained importance, to all queries shaking mute heads.

Came the medical examiner, then undertakers.

Reading between the lines of Disher's army record one finds he had lived in Connecticut. In fact he went to Connecticut from the Philippines where he was discharged from Uncle Sam's aircraft service in 1920. He was married to Elsie Cheney in 1918.

AT ARMY BASE.

Disher evidently went directly to his wife from the Philippines. A year ago, information he gave when he made recent application to get back into the service, shows that they lived at No. 126 Babcock street, Brookline. From there they went to Egypt, where the 30-acres estate was purchased by Mrs. Disher and Disher installed as lord and master.

In making his application for reinstatement into Uncle Sam's army not a few months back Disher had his little joke. He motored to the Army Base from South Boston in a $9,000 car. To the query of "Who is dependent upon you," he wrote, "A wife."

Disher originally came from the West. He was 30 years old. His wealthy wife was 40.

Saturday last several maids were discharged by the murdered woman preparatory to sailing for Europe. The sight of the packed trunks and the preparations for closing "Brookwood" put the man who "married for money" into a mood which spelled murder and suicide and gave Egypt and Scituate a bit of scandal to wag over for months to come.

ARMY FLIER 3 YEARS.

Disher saw three years' army service in the flying department and was discharged in the Philippines on December 31, 1920. He then taught flying at Massachusetts Tech.

He formerly lived at 93 Front street, South Manchester, Ct., and later at No. 126 Babcock street, Brookline.

He was at the latter address as late as April of last year moving from there with his young wife to Scituate.

He made application for active air service duty two months ago, but was declined. He asked at that time for service at Mitchel Field. In his application papers he gave as dependent upon him, "a wife."

His army record follows: From June 15, to November 11, 1917, master signal electrician; then assigned to following aircraft squadrons: 47th, 48th, 120th, 136th, and 328th and later became a cadet at Kelly Field, Texas.

OFFICER AT TECH

He next became a student officer at Tech. From April to Aug. 1918 he was assistant engineer officer of Chanute Fieldt. He was transferred to Rolling Field, Washington and later to the Philiipine Islands where he ended his three years' service on Dec. 31, 1920. The following year he established his residence in Connecticut then later in Brookline, and finally in Scituate where he ended his life today after killing his young wife.

JAP OPERA QUEEN FEARS FOR HER KIN

New York, Sept. 10.—A pathetic and realistic "butterfly" was Mee Tamaki Miura, Japanese soprano of the San Carlo Company, who arrived here on the Conte Verde. The little opera singer, scarcely five feet high, paced the decks of the ship, filled with concern for the welfare of her family in Tokio.

Her father, mother and two brothers lived in Yammamoto section of Tokio. Miura close to the Imperial Palace, and although Mrs. Mirua has been in communication with several Japanese officials she has been unable to trace her relatives. In Yokohama she had two brothers.

She fears they have been lost in the earthquake.

When it was suggested that she might be unable to sing she said:

"No, I shall sing, even though the fear of what may have happened in within me. Here on board I sang in the concert for the benefit of my people, and never before have I been so glad that I could sing. I shall go right on."

SOCIETY FOLK ON STAND AT PIER GAMBLING TRIAL

Wakefield, R. I., Sept. 10.—Prominent society people of Rhode Island, New York, and Boston and other cities are expected to testify at the trial of John C. Joyce of Narragansett Pier, which began today in the circuit court before Judge Watts.

Joyce is charged with being a common gambler, and his arrest followed a raid upon one of his alleged resorts at Narragansett Pier. It is charged by the State that many of the wealthy people of the eastern cities frequented his place.

Among those brought in to testify are Mrs. Reba Robinson of Philadelphia; Colonel Joseph Samuels, owner of the Outlet store in Providence, W. Herbert Caswell, town clerk of East Greenwich, R. I., and Frank Murray of East Greenwich, R. I.

The courtroom was crowded when the trial began, inasmuch as it was hinted many startling things would be revealed during the course of the testimony.

ASKS MILLION TO SAVE JAPS

Washington Sept. 10.—Reporting that an epidemic of fever had broken out at Tokio, Ambassador Woods in a cable to the State Department today said it was imperative that $1,000,000 of American Red Cross funds be placed immediately at the disposal of its relief committee in Japan for the quick purchase of medical supplies and food from nearby markets.

Ambassador Woods also reported the appointment of the Red Cross Relief Committee as follows:

"In accordance with instructions, have appointed American Red Cross Relief Committee with Admiral Anderson, commander-in-chief of American Asiatic Fleet, as chairman."

U. S. Relief Fund for Japs Over $3,000,000

Washington, Sept. 10.—With more than two-thirds of the amount raised, the drive to bring the nation's contributions up to the $5,000,000 minimum sought by the American Red Cross for relief of the Japanese earthquake sufferers was continued today by every local chapter.

Necessity of swelling the contributions to expedite relief for the hundreds of thousands injured and more than two million homeless was emphasized by John Barton Payne, national chairman of the Red Cross, and Secretary of Commerce Hoover, as a member of the executive committee.

Japan's Chief Banks Escape Destruction

Washington, Sept. 10.—Two reports under date of September 8, one dealing with the economic aspect of the earthquake losses and the other describing the extent of damage and the relief measures taken, have been received by the Japanese embassy here from the foreign office in Tokio. The dispatches said:

"The commercial and industrial districts of Tokio and Yokohama are almost entirely destroyed. In Tokio the large buildings of the chief banks are safe.

"The local economic situation is expected soon to become normal. Thus it is expected that all unessentials will speedily disappear and that there need be no fear of economic disturbance.

"The wards of Honjo, Fukagawa, Nihonbashi, Kyobashi, Kanda, Asakusa, have been almost completely devastated.

"Half of each of the wards of Shitaya, Hongo, Shiba, Yutsaya have been devastated.

"The wards of Koishikawa, Kojimachi, Akasaka were partly destroyed by fire. The wards of Ushigome and Azabu practically escaped fire damage.

Of the Imperial family, three were killed, Princess Hiroko Kan-in, as did Admiral Count Hijiaki Kuni, at Kugenuma, and Princess Yamashina, at Kamakura. The Princess Kayor was injured at Kamakura.

"The Emperor personally contributed ten million yen to the relief fund."

50,000 Lives Lost in Tokio and Yokohama

Tokio, Sept. 10. (A.P.)—Casualties in Tokio and Yokohama now are estimated at 50,000 dead and 100,000 injured.

Rationing of necessaries has been discontinued. Food is plentiful. Order prevails.

The Department of Communications Building and the training college of the bureau of telegraph posts were destroyed by fire, as well as the post offices in Tokio and Yokohama, but the communication system is being restored gradually.

The work of cleaning up the capital is already well under way. At Sumida, in the northwestern part of the city, where many thousands sought refuge when the flames threatened to wipe out the city, 10,000 bodies have been cremated. In most cases identification was impossible.

Bank of Japan Extends Help for Reconstruction

Osaka, Sept. 10 (A.P.)—It is understood the Bank of Japan will offer financial help to bankers throughout the country. The branch at Tokio holds unissued bank notes to the value of 200,000,000 yen and recovered notes to the extent of 100,000,000 yen, and it is ready to place these at the disposal of the bankers.

The government of the moratorium is bound to disclose financial operations in this city and elsewhere; hence the Osaka branch of the bank of Japan has decided to render all possible assistance to private bankers.

The Minister of Finance is reported to have stated that Japan may seek a foreign loan to finance reconstruction.

SUITCASE CLEW AT NANTASKET

other remains, in an effort to ascertain whether or not the woman came to her death as the result of homicidal violence of illegal surgery.

He will turn in his report tomorrow.

TWO PONDS TO BE DRAGGED.

District Attorney Arthur K. Reading said the State is now working on the theory that the two new black suitcases with flowered crimson lining into which torso, arms and legs were packed, may not have been bought from a bag dealer, but may have come as part of an automobile accessories. Automobile firms are to be interviewed today in the effort to run down this hypothesis.

Mr. Reading also stated that two ponds in the vicinity of Lakeview will be dragged and possibly explored by Diver Robinson to determine whether the head was cast in them instead of the river.

Three days before the suitcases were found, Lowell police interviewed one of the two local men suspected of complicity in the murder of Patrolman Arthur J. Bower on Methuen on August 1. A blonde woman was in the automobile from which the fatal shot was fired.

Next day the suspect disappeared. So did a young blonde woman with whom the suspect was known to associate. At that time the police concluded that the man examined, feared the officers might learn something from her.

When the two suit cases containing all but the head and pelvis of the river victim were found, certain members of the Lowell police force connected both homicides, but decided to proceed with caution. Developments are said to have strengthened their theory that both local suspects became so alarmed over the possibility of the woman informing on them that she was murdered, and illegal surgery simulated by concealing the abdominal region of the victim with her head.

District Attorney Reading said:

"We are convinced that the car which figured in the crash at the bridge is the car which carried the dismembered parts of the woman's body.

"We also believe that but one of the suitcases which were found in the river containing the dismembered parts of the body was thrown from the bridge. That was probably the one containing the torso of the woman. The other, containing the woman's legs, was probably thrown from the bank of the river near the place where it was found floating."

District Attorney Reading supports his theory that the suitcase containing the woman's legs was thrown from the river bank by pointing out that the suitcase was too heavy to have floated three miles from the bridge to the place where it was found.

Diver Robinson worked all day Sunday and resumed explorations today, working down stream from the bridge. Emptying of the mill locks revealed no trace of the missing parts.

MAY USE DYNAMITE

A Tyngsboro man, who claims to have heard the automobile crash into the Tyngsboro bridge on the night the suitcases were cast into the river, declares he saw the damaged car speed away in the direction of Nashua, N. H.

The possibility of dynamiting the river in an attempt to unearth the missing parts of the victim's body is being contemplated.

ITALY RESUMES SHIP SAILINGS TO GREECE

Corfu, Sept. 10 (AP).—Maritime communication between Greece and Italy was re-established with the arrival here of the Greek steamer Atroditos. Regular service between Corfu and the mainland will be maintained as well as the usual sailings to and from this port and Brindisi, Italy.

The occupation caught a number of American tourists in Corfu, and these are most anxious to start homeward.

Vice-Admiral Simonetti, Italian Governor, told the correspondent arrangements were being made at the request of the Near East Relief to transfer 1,500 Anatolian refugees to Greece.

Large quantities of stores for the forces of occupation continues to pour into the island. Apart from this activity the town remains calm.

Greek Reply Taken Up By Ambassadors

Paris, Sept. 10 (AP).—A meeting of the Inter-Allied Council of Ambassadors was called today for consideration of the Greek reply to the terms laid down by the Council for settlement of the Greco-Italian dispute. Final arrangements will be made also for the work of the investigating commission.

A telegram from Viscount Ishi, president of the League of Nations council, acknowledging the receipt of the text of the ambassadors' decision, will likewise be placed before the council.

pital, where it was found her condition was serious. The girl showed plainly the effects of a recent chloroforming.

When she recovered consciousness at the hospital, she told this story.

MARTHA'S STORY

She said that she had been at Nahant, and was standing on Nahant boulevard when a big limousine with window shades drawn drove up. The driver leaned out, and asked:

"Which is the way to Nahant?"

The child pointed the way.

"How far is it?"

"About ten minutes' walk from here," she answered.

"Would you mind getting in and directing?" asked the driver. Martha said she thought this was a peculiar request, inasmuch as the car was directly on the road, but she wasn't at all against the prospect of a little ride, and she got in.

THE UNSEEN HAND.

When she saw the big car turning off the Nahant road, she started to point out the mistake to the driver. From the rear of the car came a hand with a handkerchief in it. The handkerchief was applied to her nose, and she lost consciousness.

When she came to she was lying on a meadow near the Thomas Farm on Highland avenue, Salem. She staggered to her feet and began to walk toward Lynn, and was wandering about in a semi-conscious state when Poole saw her and called the police.

Martha gave the police a description of the two men in the limousine.

WARD TRIAL TO BARE FAMILY SKELETON

Coolidge's Secretary Named in Graft

DROWNING OF 2 BOYS FEARED

Winchester Reservoir May Be Drained After Finding of Clothes on Banks

The finding of the clothes of two boys on the bank of the Winchester Reservoir has aroused the fear that the boys were drowned.

If reports of missing boys from nearby towns are received the Winchester police plan to drag the reservoir. The clothes were found by Mounted Officer Edward Shea of the Winchester police.

The clothing included two pairs of boy's pants, two suits of boy's underwear, and two caps, of the size worn by the average youth of sixteen. No shoes or other articles of clothing could be found. The pants were gray in color. One pair was almost new and the other had been worn some time.

In the pocket of the old pair were found a collar button and an expensive gold tie clasp. The new pair had stenciled on the lining the number 5696.

Officers Shea and Dottea searched the reservoir in a rowboat without finding any traces of boys. The water at this point is from thirty to forty feet deep.

WOMAN HURT IN BACK BAY AUTO COLLISION

Mrs. Christine McKinnon, twenty-one years old, of No. 507 Columbus avenue, was seriously injured, when an auto in which she was riding with James I. Hutchinson, of No. 44 Rogers avenue, Somerville, collided with a machine operated by William H. Buchanan of No. 144 Warren avenue, Boston, at Falmouth street and Massachusetts avenue.

Mrs. McKinnon was taken to the City Hospital in a police ambulance. She suffers a deep laceration on the right forehead and abrasions about the face.

PIRATES ROB CHINESE SHIP OF $20,000 GOLD

Hong Kong, Sept. 10.—Fifty armed pirates traveling on a steamer bound from Canton to Hong Kong surprised the captain in his cabin, ordered the officers to the wheel house under armed guard and then ransacked the ship, carrying off $20,000 in gold. They held for ransom the ships compradar, tallyman and nine Chinese passengers.

GAS EXPLOSION BURNS CAFE MAN

William Quinlan, proprietor of the Park Restaurant, Main street, Waltham, narrowly escaped death when he lit a match in the kitchen of the restaurant after the gas range had gone out, causing an explosion. Quinlan was treated at the Waltham Hospital for severe burns of the right hand and arm. His hair was also burned.

Romance Vanished in Hurry

MRS. GRACE F. BROWN

Maynard woman who returned to husband within twenty-four hours after eloping with her protege, fifteen years her junior.

WIFE RETURNED AFTER DAY WITH BOY

Maynard, Sept. 10.—Less than twenty-four hours after she disappeared from her home here with Arthur Warren, Jr., twenty years old, Mrs. Grace F. Brown returned to her husband, Edward F. Brown, and begged his forgiveness.

Brown, who charges he missed a diamond ring valued at $400 and $100 in cash, had asked for warrants for the arrest of his wife and Warren. He was granted a warrant against Warren and police from Boston to Daytona, Fla., were informed to be on the lookout for the couple.

The husband appeared relentless as he greeted his erring spouse and demanded that the police arrest her. He vowed publicly that he would "get" Warren if he "had to go to China after him."

According to the husband, Mrs. Brown, who is thirty-five years old, became infatuated with the boy, after Brown had befriended him and taken him into his home.

Mrs. Brown wept bitterly and begged her husband to give her another chance.

She admitted that she left Maynard with young Warren, but insisted that they separated in Boston, when Warren left her and went to his home in Needham. She said she then took a train to Springfield and walked the streets of the city all night. She claimed that half of the money her husband had accused her and Warren of taking was her own and that the other half had not been touched.

Brown declared that he has been suspicious of his wife's acquaintance with Warren for some time. He said he often chided her but to no avail.

BLACKMAIL PLOTTED BY WARD

State Plans to Show Accused Slayer Planned to Fleece His Own Father

New York, Sept. 10.—The family skeleton which sent the Ward family scurrying to their treasure chests to conceal it from public view will emerge from its closet when Walter S. Ward, son of the millionaire baker, goes on trial here Wednesday for the murder of Clarence Peters of Haverhill.

Ward will set up as a defense a blackmail plot.

The victims were his father, George S. Ward, president of the Ward Baking Company, and his present wife, Mrs. Donna Lester Ward, to whom he was married in Chicago in February, 1921.

Walter S. Ward

And — the latest developments indicate—Walter Ward was himself implicated, not as a victim, but as one of the blackmailers.

It is known that young Ward's private fortune was dissipated by dissolute living, gambling and excesses.

AIMED PLOT AT FATHER.

According to information said to be in the hands of the prosecution, Walter Ward connived to concoct a blackmail plot to fleece his father out of $91,000.

Ralph Ward, Walter's brother, told the story of the blackmail plot to the authorities. He said that it was planned by a man named Ross, who met Walter at one of the race tracks.

Ross came to Walter's office one day and told him the police had started to get certain town characters out of the city. He said that he was on the list and that he needed money to fight.

"Ross came to Walter with a companion," Ralph's story relates. "They told him a story concerning the relations between my father and his second wife, but about this time I noticed that Walter wasn't looking well and wasn't paying attention to the business. I asked him what the trouble was.

WALTER NEEDED $100,000.

"He said he needed a lot of money—$100,000. I told him I didn't have it. Father was in Europe. I told him I would cable him. There was a bank balance of about $9,000, so I asked father to give Walter the difference—$91,000.

"Father authorized me to do this, but he countermanded the order by cable before I had a chance to turn the money over to Walter. Father said he didn't want the $100,000 paid if it was for blackmail. The two men kept up the pressure on my brother. They telephoned him and wrote letters threatening him and his wife and children.

"Finally, after they had driven him almost to suicide, Walter made an appointment to meet them. He met them, and with them at the time was a third man named Pete, who seemed to be the toughest of the three. All had guns. Walter told them he couldn't get the $100,000. He showed the father's cable.

BULLETS FIRED AT AUTO.

"As he turned away, they followed him and fired two shots, which hit the window in Walter's car. The next day one of them called him up again. He went to meet them that night."

Ralph then described the meeting on the road on May 15, which culminated in the death of Peters and the shooting of Ross.

It is not likely that Ralph will be permitted to tell the story at the trial of his brother. The defence will object strenuously if the State attempts to introduce it through his testimony.

But if he is permitted to testify the Ward family skeleton will be revealed to public view.

CASH ASKED FOR MAIL POSITION

Ex-Service Men Taxed $200 for Appointment as Rural Carriers

By Universal Service

Washington, Sept. 10.—The Democratic National Committee renewed its attack on C. Bascom Slemp, Secretary to President Coolidge, on the basis of charges of trafficking in Federal patronage in Virginia, while Slemp was a member of Congress.

Three more of the "Dear Ben" letters, which were not read into the Congressional Record by Representative Thomas W. Harrison, Democrat, of Virginia, in his expose of December 15 last, of the manner in which patronage was dispensed in the Old Dominion, were made public by the committee.

The letters, according to the committee's statement, were signed by L. B. Howard, then secretary to Representative Slemp, and were addressed to Benjamin R. Powell of Gretna, Va., local patronage arbiter. They deal with efforts to collect money from applicants for government jobs.

SLEMP DENIES GRAFT.

In his reply to the charges made against him in that connection, Slemp stated that the only collections he knew anything about were to wipe out his district's quota of the Republican national committee's 1920 campaign deficit. If his secretary, Howard, had written letters or taken any other action looking to the collection of money in return for Federal appointments, he acted without Slemp's direction, knowledge or consent, Slemp said.

The first letter set forth in the Democratic committee's statement was dated December 18, 1921. Its content follows: (Errors in originals retained)

"Dear Ben: We have a rural route matter at Meadows of Dan in Patrick County that I want you to try and work out in a way that we can get something out of it.

ALL EX-SERVICE MEN.

"The eligibles are Alvin M. Barnard, William B. Clark and John A. Smart, all Democrats. They are ex-service men and we will have to appoint one of them. The question is can we get the one we appoint to put up some cash. I know you can if any one can.

"It would be immaterial which one we appoint. My suggestion would be to work it through Archie Staples so as to not get in any hobble that might hurt. If you can agree to get one of the three to do something, we can make the appointment at once. You better not use my name or Mr. Slemp's in the matter. Just say that you have authority to make the recommendation that will go. I enclose a letter now that will back you up in this connection. See what you can do and let me know. Get all you can.

"Your friend,

"(Signed) L. B. HOWARD."

The enclosure, dated on the same day, read:

"This is to say that Mr. B. R. Powell is authorized to recommend rural mail carriers at Meadows of Dan, Va.

(Signed) L. B. Howard,
"Secretary."

On the same date, the Democratic committee adds, Howard wrote the following letter in long hand to Powell:

ASSESSMENT $200.

"Dear Ben: Further relative to rural route at Meadows of Dan.. I wrote you about today. I would get all I could out of the matter. Give it to the one that will give you the most.

"You should have at least $200 I think.

"With best wishes, I am,
"Sincerely,
(Signed) "L. B. Howard,
Sec."

The Committee's statement then points out that a rural carrier with an 18 to 20-mile route daily receives $960 per annum.

The third letter offered by the Democratic Committee was dated December 27, 1921, in which Howard speaks of a "delicate" matter. The letter follows:

"Dear Ben:

"I enclose your a copy of letter I received from Mr. Jones a short time ago. I have succeeded in pulling his son over the top and am ready to make the appointment, but before we do so it will be necessary for you to get in touch with him and arrange for some money. We will have to have at least $150 in order to come out whole. It took half of that amount to put the matter over, which I will explain to you when I see you. I want you to handle the matter instead of writing to them direct.

"DELICATE" MATTER

"It's a very delicate matter and I had to do some strong wire pulling to get it through and I know you can work it in the right way. I would not write any letter on the matter but phone the boy to come and see you. If you can I would like for it to all be arranged by the first of the year. This is a lifetime position for the boy which he would not have gotten if it had not been for me, and I feel sure that they will appreciate fully the circumstances and protect me in the matter. If you think it is worth more than the above amount you can arrange accordingly.

"How are you getting along on the Meadows of Dan matter.

"Your friend,

(Signed "L. B. HOWARD."

"Secretary Howard," says the committee's statement, "then adds this postscript in longhand:

"P. S. Be sure and destroy this letter after you are through with it."

MISS MARGARET BLACK, "MISS BOSTON"

In a post-pageant contest held by the Chalfont-Haddon Halls Hotels at Atlantic City, where ten of the intercity beauties were guests, the third prize, and "Miss Melrose" upper left, was also a contestant. Miss Margaret Black, "Miss Boston," was awarded second prize as the most becomingly gowned. "Miss St. Louis," at upper right, won the machinery?" That's the way

GOWN CONTEST PRIZE WON BY 'MISS BOSTON'

Atlantic City, Sept. 10.—At a post-pageant contest, staged by the Chalfonte-Haddon Hall Hotels, Miss Margaret Black, "Miss Boston," captured the second prize offered for the most becomingly gowned beauty.

The contest was between ten of the beauties, who had been guests at these two hotels during the pageant. Miss Boston wore the same gown in which she was attired at the National Beauty tournament.

The first prize was awarded to Miss Margaret Gorman, the "Miss America" of 1921, and the third prize went to "Miss St. Louis." Others who participated in the contest were "Miss Memphis," "Miss Philadelphia," "Miss Washington," "Miss Jacksonville," "Miss Baltimore" and "Miss Cambridge."

GUESTS AT DANCE.

Following the contest "Miss Boston," with the other intercity beauties, left for the Chelsea Yacht Club, where they were entertained at a dinner-dance given by the members of the club. Other guests included Mayor Bader, Director General Armand Nichols, and associate directors of the pageant. "Miss Boston" will remain in Atlantic City until Thursday.

"Miss Boston's" social activities are keeping her so busy many of them have had to be declined.

GOES SIGHT SEEING.

She enjoyed an automobile tour as the guest of the escort assigned to her during the pageant and was shown the exclusive residences of Philadelphia and New York wealthy business and professional men in Chelsea and Ventnor. She was also taken through Longport and over to Somers Point and Ocean City, other Summer resorts of Atlantic City.

Later "Miss Boston" and "Miss Detroit" were the guests of Louis Burke, owner of the yacht Enchantress. Mr. Burke entertained these two beauties at the Atlantic City Country Club at Northfield. After dinner the young women played golf with members of the club and Clarence Hackney, one of America's foremost professional golfers.

"Miss Boston" with several other beauties visited the Steeple Chase pier, where they spent the evening taking in the many amusements.

HUB WON'T TOLERATE GOSPEL, SAYS MASSEE

"Satan threw a monkey wrench into the machinery." That's the way Rev. Dr. J. C. Massee of Tremont Temple describes the Japanese catastrophe. "What happened to Yokohama in a few minutes can happen to Boston, and 100,000 dead may fill the streets tomorrow morning," he said. "Every real Christian believes that there is a malignant personality at work to hinder the plan of God. As God could not have been the author of such misery, Satan must have been. All sinners by their malignant moral influence help to produce such catastrophes. As for Boston, the one thing Boston won't tolerate is the true Gospel of Christ. Japan is no more sinful nor pagan than New England."

Rev. Dr. Massee.

AUTHOR'S ASHES TO BE CAST IN STREAM

New York, Sept. 10.—Kate Douglas Wiggin loved the Saco River, Maine. Within a few days her ashes will be strewn on the waters of the old stream. It was the author's dying wish. Her husband, George C. Riggs, will perform the last rite. He arrived on the steamship Ohio from England. There the author of "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" and other glad stories died a week ago at Narrow-on-the-Hill near London.

5 MASKED MEN ROB THREE IN WEST END

Five armed young men, all about five feet six, and wearing gray suits and gray hats, and all masked with white handkerchiefs, entered the home of Vincent Winoski in the West End, and robbed him and his friends of $134.

Winoski lives at No. 62 Nashua Street, West End. His two friends, Michael Bolinski, of No. 28 Glendon Street, East Boston, and Roman Kisowski, of No. 9 Green Street, West End, were visiting at his home.

According to Winoski, he and his guests were in the parlor when a knock sounded on the door.

Winoski opened the door and was confronted by the five men who looked like quintuplets from their similar attire and appearance.

They filed into the room, lined Winoski and his two friends up against the wall, threatening them with revolvers. Winoski handed over $100, while his friends handed over $17 each. The bandits then left, after threatening to shoot up the house if an alarm was given.

Winoski notified the police of the robbery, mentioning the fact that he had drawn the $100 from the bank Saturday to pay today is a fine recently imposed for violation of the liquor law.

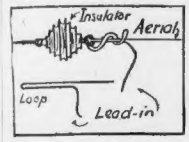
Today's Winning Wrinkle

In erecting an aerial most radio fans put the horizontal wire in place and then solder the lead-in wire to it.

I have used a scheme that I think is many new better. Instead of using the aerials wire I fastened the far end of the aerial wire to a pole and brought the free end to the other insulator and looped it through the lead-in wire.

Then, without cutting the wire, I wound the free end a few times around the aerial wire, so that it would not slip out of the insulator eye. The free end I used for a lead-in.



This avoided the necessity of a soldered joint between aerial and lead-in wire, which is liable to corrode in time and interfere with reception. If seven or eight turns are made around the wire with the loade in, there will be no danger of slipping.

LEAGUE ADMITS IRELAND BY 100 P.C. VOTE

Geneva, Sept. 10 (AP).—Ireland was unanimously elected to membership in the League of Nations by the assembly today.

Dr. Epitacio Pessoa of Brazil was elected to the Permanent Court of International Justice at The Hague by the assembly and council of the League of Nations, voting concurrently this morning. He succeeds the late Ruy Barbosa, also of Brazil.

The report of the sub-committee that recommended the entrance of Ireland was read by former Premier Meierovitz of Latvia. He paid high tribute to "the noble Irish nation," and likewise to England, "which had never remained deaf," he said, "to the aspirations of the Irish people for liberty."

President Torriente extended a warm greeting to the Irish Free State in the name of the assembly and the Irish delegation was invited to enter the hall.

The applause at once broke out again, and amidst an impressive demonstration President Cosgrove ascended the rostrum and began the salutatory address. He spoke in his native tongue at the outset, but changed to English within a few moments. He referred to Ireland as one of the oldest and also one of the youngest nations of the earth, which after a long journey and many tribulations has come into her own. Ireland, he said, now looked forward to the cessation of all bitterness and hostility and counted upon having no enemies. She looked forward to enjoy the fruits of liberty, but would devote herself to the reconstruction of the nation. In that work, he added, she would ever be cheered by the cordial welcome extended as she entered th League of Nations.

For All Complexion Ills
Use Ordinary Mercolized Wax

If the skin be colorless, sallow, muddy, or red, blotchy or freckled, nothing will so surely overcome the condition as ordinary mercolized wax. It literally takes off a bad complexion—absorbs the dead and near-dead particles of surface skin, gently, gradually, causing no inconvenience at all. A new complexion is then in evidence, clear, spotless, delicately soft and beautiful. One ounce of this wax, procurable at any drug store, will rejuvenate even the worst complexion. It is used like cold cream, at bedtime.

RECORD BODIES OF SCIENTISTS VIEW ECLIPSE

Los Angeles, Sept. 10.—When the sky unfolds its most impressive pageant—a total eclipse of the sun—along the coast of Southern California today, the largest body of spectators in the history of modern science will be on hand to see it.

From the point of totality in this vicinity, the eclipse will grade away gradually eastward across the United States. Beginning at 12:54 p. m., there will be 169 seconds during which the moon will hide the sun.

Total eclipses of the sun are rare, the men of science point out, and total eclipses visible in well populated regions are extremely rare.

This year, though, the shadow of the eclipse will cover less than three-tenths of one per cent. of the earth's surface, that comparatively narrow shadow, 105 miles across, will strike a fairly populous portion of the United States, or will be within easy reach of a populous section and will be visible at the most favorable time of the day for scientific and lay observation.

Eclipse Excites Ignorant in Mexico

Mexico City, Sept. 10 (A.P.).—The moon today paints a black shadow streak through Mexico from Lower California to Yucatan.

The solar eclipse, which is partial throughout the entire republic, and complete in a strip 3,300 kilometres long by 72 kilometres wide, is being observed, with no little awe and terror by the ignorant.

Superstitious Indians, upon viewing the preparations for observing the eclipse and learning the purpose of the visitors, betook themselves and their most valuable belongings to what they believed to be safer ground several miles distant. Similar fears prevailed in some of the larger cities where the fantastic predictions of the fortune tellers combined to excite the ignorant masses.

ASK S. A. OFFICERS $5 EACH FOR JAPS

New York, Sept. 10.—Evangeline Booth today opened the Salvation Army's Japanese relief drive, temporarily set at $1,000,000 by notifying the Army's 3,400 officers throughout the country that each would be expected to give $5 from his salary. A fund of $17,485 would be raised from this source alone, she estimated.

50 KILLED IN CALCUTTA QUAKE; HOUSES COLLAPSE

London, Sept. 10 (AP).—Fifty persons are reported killed or injured in an earthquake which shook Calcutta today, says an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from that British Indian city. The reported casualties occurred in the Nymensingh district, where many houses collapsed.

Earthquake shocks also occurred at Rondachong, in Assam, preceded by loud detonations.

Zurich, Sept. 10.—The seismograph at the Zurich Observatory at 2:07 o'clock this morning recorded a series of earthshocks lasting several seconds at a distance of 10,000 kilometres (6,210 miles).

The centre of the disturbance was thought to be in China.

SCHOONER PULLED OFF ROCKS SOUTHWARD OF CUTTYHUNK

New Bedford, Mass., Sept. 10.—The Coast Guard cutter Acushnet today at high tide pulled the four-masted schooner Alice L. Pendleton off the rocks near the Coast Guard station on the south shore of Cuttyhunk. The schooner was apparently little damaged. She went ashore at midnight.

The crew remained aboard. The Pendleton was 15 days out of Jacksonville, Fla., with a load of hard pine railroad ties.

Vineyard Haven, Sept. 10.—The schooner Frederick J. Lovatt of Machiasport, Me., was badly damaged in collision with the steamship Everett, Boston to Norfolk, off Hedges Ferry Lightship, Vineyard Sound. The Coast Guard cutter, summoned by radio, towed the Lovatt to this port, the Everett standing by until the cutter arrived.

Announcing Important Changes In Peerless Prices

The manufacture of Peerless cars has reached a stage of standardization and a volume of production which make it possible to announce an important change in Peerless prices.

For eighteen months we have been steadily progressing toward this achievement—urged on by the conviction that the prices asked for the very finest cars it is possible to build, could be lowered.

We have accomplished this reduction, and it is gratifying to us to add that the extraordinary refinements in our manufacturing facilities assure a continuous improvement in the quality of the Peerless, one of the world's finest eight-cylinder automobiles.

In considering the importance of these new prices, which range from $2690 to $4090, keep in mind the fact that no American motor car, regardless of price, excels the New Peerless Eight in performance, dependability, beauty and comfort.

'STOVE PIPE' IS GOWN FAD AT CHANTILLY

Paris, Sept. 10.—Hobble-knee skirts, "stove-pipe" gowns, and "Geisha" combination robe cloaks were the most noteworthy fashion innovations at the re-opening of the Paris racing season at Chantilly this afternoon.

Favored by brilliant sunshine, more than a hundred mannequins paraded before the stands, proving a strong counter attraction to the racing.

The autumnal silhouette is definitely straighter and slimmer than ever, some of the women looking as though they were garbed in a "cardboard funnel," as Andre de Fouquiere, arbiter of elegance, remarked.

The rule is that no gown shall be wider than the shoulders of the wearer. One "Jenny" creation descended absolutely straight to the knees and then was abruptly gathered in by a wide tuck, below which the skirt flowed to the ankles in extending billows.

The Japanese disaster caused a minor earthquake in the fashion world of Paris, for as a consequence of the great disturbance silks and embroideries have shot up in price with tremendous rapidity, thereby jumping straight into fashion, as whatever is high priced and scarce is invariably modish.

The result has been the eclipse of the Russian, Indian and Egyptian fabrics and embroideries, which have been most popular for several months, in favor of Japanese and Chinese specialties.

Belot, one of the card party, was arrested charged with manslaughter. He was released on $5,000 bail. Belot, the police say, bumped Hill's head against the tablein a fight after a dispute as to who won a jackpot.

BANDITS SEEK CASH, GET CROWBAR

Elmer Crowell is the night man at the Custom House Street Garage. Early today three young men motored up for gas. They gave Elmer a $2 bill. He went inside to make change. They followed him. One produced a gun. "Give us your dough," said he.

"Wait a minute," said Elmer. He stooped as though to reach in the safe. Instead he picked up a crowbar. A minute later three would-be bandits were in their car speeding for life.

"And don't you come back for your change either," yelled Elmer shaking his crow bar in their wake.

Noted Writers' Love Pact Results in Many Suicides

Tokio, Sept. 10 (AP)—The recent double suicide of Mr. Arishima, one of Japan's foremost novelists and of Akiko Hatano, a young married woman magazine writer as a result of a love affair and death pact continues to hold the attention of the Japanese public. This is due not merely to the prominence of the pair or to their tragic deaths, for suicides are not unusual in this country.

It is the imitators of the famous couple that are keeping interest alive. Many couples, for the most part obscure, are seeking reflected glory from the main event by imitating the writers' example.

The growth of western philosophy, however, is gradually turning the public against suicide under any circumstances.

LIFE OF LUXURY GONE, MAN KILLS SELF

New York, Sept. 10.—Allan Hart Whiting, forty-nine, president of the Whiting Motor Company of this city, shot himself in the head in his apartment here and died.

Despondency caused by business reverses, which had compelled him to give up his luxurious mode of living, caused the deed, it is believed.

Whitney was a graduate of Yale, a member of the University, New York Athletic, Yale, Engineers, Aero and Manhattan Automobile Clubs, the Automobile Club of America, the Society of Engineers and American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

BLUE BOAR

English Blend Cigarettes

20 for 25¢

A New Cigarette —a new blend

A 19 year development resulting in a remarkable discovery. A rare delight for critical smokers. Now on sale everywhere.

At a time when cigarettes have apparently reached their limit of perfection comes a surprising discovery, a new-type cigarette, very distinctive.

As all men know, wonderful progress has been made in cigarette making. There are many excellent brands, many favorites. Blending has reached an art.

To the credit, yet despair of experts, no outstanding achievement has seemed possible lately. Each smoker has become content with his favorite cigarette—and no one has been expecting an entirely different, unusual blend.

But suddenly out of perfection, as a 19 year recompense, comes a wonder-blend, exclusive, superfine.

Its pedigree

We call this new cigarette Blue Boar because it is developed from America's favorite fine tobacco, Blue Boar Pipe Mixture.

For 19 years its tobaccos have been the finest obtainable—eight rare types of the choicest American, Turkish and Egyptian. Here was no chance for betterment.

The secret of this new-type cigarette is in a newly discovered method of blending. This may sound commonplace to men who have felt that the limit of refinement had been reached, but you will be as surprised as others when you smoke your first pack of Blue Boars.

Blue Boar tobacco is TRIPLY blended.

The ordinary process is but a single blending, which now seems crude. Yet for years experts have considered one blending sufficient, and have searched elsewhere for refinements.

In Blue Boar we blend the two American tobaccos separately. Likewise the five Turkish. Then we give the Latakia from Egypt a mellowing treatment. Each tobacco develops its finest characteristics. A third and final blending insures a rare and distinctive combination, such as you've never known before. The old way never could bring such perfection.

It is a costlier, slower process—but worth it as you'll agree. The result of this simple discovery makes all the difference in the world—an entirely new taste, a refinement of all refinements.

Your decision, please

Blue Boar Cigarettes are now on the market and already over 500,000 men have shown this triple blending their enthusiastic preference.

We ask you to sample this unusual cigarette. Learn why it is causing so much comment. Note its distinct flavor, its surprising and agreeable difference from any cigarette you have ever smoked before. Compare triple blending with the ordinary.

Buy one pack of Blue Boars. We promise you a delightful surprise. You'll undoubtedly adopt Blue Boars as your final-type favorite —and never switch again.

INCORPORATED

EXCELSIOR!

ON August 29 Edison Service, climbing steadily up the grade of progress with its community, reached a new level.

On that date the load connected to the Edison system equalled 500,000 kilowatts, or 671,000 horsepower.

Five hundred thousand kilowatts would light ten 50 candle-power lamps (bulbs) in each of one million homes.

Or, 500,000 kilowatts would light a continuous line of such lamps set twenty inches apart on every street in the territory served by Edison Light.

Or, 500,000 kilowatts would light a continuous line of such lamps, eighteen inches apart, from Boston to San Francisco.

TIME flies. A community like ours is on the march. In January, 1895, there was a great celebration in Edison Service because it had reached a record of connected load equal to 190,000 lamps of 16 candle-power each.

Today the 500,000 kilowatts will light ten million lamps of 50 candle-power each.

There's a thrill, of course, but no undue elation. For in the years between we have learned that Edison Service grows not only by, and for, but especially with its community.

LOST 5 MILLION BY NEWPORT VACATION

Divorced wife of Angier B. Duke, youthful tobacco king, who cut her off without a cent in his will. Young Duke was drowned on Labor Day. His death revealed the secret of the marital troubles between the wealthy couple. According to her millionaire daddy, the famous 'Tony' Biddle, the fair Cordelia was forced to quit Duke because of his fondness for the "Gay White Way."

CORDELIA DREXEL BIDDLE

Newport, Sept. 10.—It cost Cordelia Drexel Biddle, formerly Mrs. Angier B. Duke of New York and Philadelphia, $5,000,000 to spend the Summer at Newport, instead of at Long Beach.

This became known when the will of the young tobacco king was filed in New York. The will cut off Duke's ex-wife without a cent. Duke was drowned in a lake at Greenwich, Ct., on Labor Day, this year.

New York and Philadelphia society has puzzled for years over the reason for the separation and subsequent divorce of Duke and his wife, "Tony" Biddle, picturesque Philadelphia millionaire, and father of Cordelia, let it be known at the time of the separation that Duke's cruelty was the cause. He later said his daughter had suffered "indignities" at the hands of her husband.

After Duke's death, his friends revealed the divorce had followed a disagreement as to where his wife should spend her Summer vacation. The apparently trivial matter meant the wife had failed to win her husband away from Broadway and its night-life. In an effort to change his tastes in life she had virtually converted her Fifth avenue home into a cabaret, and opened her parlors for her husband's Broadway entertainers.

Then came quarrels about the Summer vacation. Duke returned to Broadway, and his wife went to her mother, the famous Mrs. Major A. Drexel Biddle, wealthiest and most fashionable woman in Philadelphia society.

Mary Duke, sister of Duke, married to Cordelia's brother, Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, Jr., attempted to effect a reconciliation, without success.

FOUR MOURNING FOR MISSING FATHER

Four little children in Dorchester are crying for their daddy, who left them without even saying good-bye.

Their mother, forced to work to keep the wolf from the door, spends all her spare time in searching for her lost husband. Now she has appealed to the police to aid her in her quest.

Mrs. Frank D. McDonald

Frank McDonald

The missing man is Frank Duncan McDonald, twenty-five years old, who served with the Nova Scotia Highlanders overseas during the World War. His home is at No. 16 Linden street, Dorchester. His middlest are: Bernard, six years old, Norine, three, Francis, two, and Thelma, eleven months.

McDonald worked for the Whiting Milk Company in Charlestown. He was at work last Wednesday. He left the Whiting plant, saying he was going out for the evening.

1923 PONY EXPRESS BEATS OLD 42 HOURS

San Francisco, Sept. 10.—The revived Pony Express, epic reminder of the old express of the '60s, ended its trip from St. Joseph, Mo. when W. S. Tevis San Francisco polo'st. rode into Tanforan racetrack here. Tevis had carried the mail pouch from the California State line. He was greeted by a cheering throng.

It was announced that the 1923 express had beaten the time of the old Pony Express by approximately forty-two hours.

The seventy-five couriers who participated in the ride covered a total of 1,780 miles at an average speed of thirteen and three-fourths miles per hour.

New York, Sept. 10.—A resolution petitioning the United States government to "bar David Lloyd George as an undesirable alien," should he visit this country, was adopted at a meeting of 1,500 sympathizers of the Irish Republic at a meeting here.

The resolution avers that the former Premier was found guilty by a coroner's jury of the murder of Mayor McCurtain of Cork.

Portland Voters Battle Klan Scheme

FIGHT PLOT TO CHANGE CHARTER

Ku Kluxers Plan to Gain Control of City Government, It Is Charged

By HARRY A. BENWELL

Portland, Me., Sept. 10.—Portland today faced a crisis in its career. On the issue of today's city election depends the grave question of whether the "Invisible Empire" shall have an active part in civic administration.

For the first time the Ku Klux Klan has come forth from the darkness which usually shrouds it, and brazenly announced it intends to attempt to dictate the form of government in this city.

The Knights of the mask and hooded robe have rallied to the attack, and today attempted to put into effect a new form of charter, providing for the administration of the city by a commission of five and a city manager.

CLAIM 14,000 VOTES

F. Eugene Farnsworth, King Kleagle and shouting shillaber of the Maine realm, in a last minute statement, declared the night riders controlled 14,000.

Prominent citizens and political leaders smiled tolerantly and succinctly murmured "bunk."

They declared Farnsworth to be indulging in a flight of fancy and that citizens of Portland opposed to the Klan would overwhelm Plan 3 in a flood of ballots.

His foes declare Farnsworth is in the Klan solely for what he can get out of it, and that the majority of the other leaders are animated by the same purpose.

Farnsworth has skilfully stirred up racial passions and prejudices and is collecting on them, they declare. He should be on the tail of a wagon selling nostrums under the glare of a gasoline flare, they said.

REACTION CLAIMED.

Furthermore the outspoken attitude of the Klan, as set forth by Farnsworth, had a reactionary effect on numerous persons hitherto favorably inclined.

The bold announcement that the Klan intended to "see that all voters in the Catholic wards voted honestly; that the Klan intended to drive a Jew and two Roman Catholics from the school board, and turn Columbus Day into a monster Klan holiday" was an amazing enlightenment.

This, taken with other statements of Farnsworth, made it plain that the "night riders" were determined to put the over Plan 3, and obtain control of the city.

As a result a great many persons have swerved from their allegiance, it is said.

The courageous action of Mayor Carroll S. Chaplin in issuing a proclamation forbidding any Klan parade on Columbus Day, was another blow to the hopes of the "Knights of the Robe."

His statement, concluding with the declaration that we are still governed by law and not strength of numbers, won warm praise throughout the city and made him many friends.

REPUBLICANS IN GALWAY BEATEN

Athlone, Sept. 10.—The military guard at the Ballinasloe railway station, County Galway, was twice attacked by Republicans. After being beaten off the first time the Republicans returned with reinforcements and concentrated a heavy rifle fire on the barracks of the military. They were repulsed after a brisk engagement.

Rented Dress Suit and Nerve Started Bell Hop on Social Career at Newport

Youthful Imposter Enjoys Self As Unbidden Guest at the Vanderbilt Wedding; Deceives Gay Young Debutantes.

By OTTO NELSON HARTMAN

My real social career started with the renting of a dress suit. That suit, plus a little nerve—not as much as you might imagine—is just as good as an engraved invitation to the wedding of Miss Cathleen Vanderbilt.

I didn't have the engraved invitation, but I had the suit, and the inclination, which amounted to the necessary nerve.

But before that, I watched newspapers every day, reading closely the social columns, and noting the various "coming out parties" for debutantes. The first time I hired a costume de rigeur I went to the International Bankers' ball in the Walford Hotel in February, 1923.

Tickets Not Needed

Ticket? Yes, I had none. I waited a few minutes after the time for the start of the ball, and then just strolled in nonchalantly. I had stepped out for a moment, for a smoke. What could they say? Why buy a ticket?

A little later I attended the Actors' Equity ball at the Astor Hotel. I had a full dress suit, but I had no ticket. I didn't need any. I had just been out for a smoke. And I had a great time there.

Always, I was just Otto Hartman of Evanston, or Park Ridge or Chicago. I never attempted to explain who I was. It wasn't necessary. In society, it would be considered rude to ask about a person who, presumably, had been invited to a fete. The host or hostess is supposed to know them, even if you do not, and there are less inquiries made than there would be at a bricklayers' ball.

I had read in newspapers that Miss Cathleen Vanderbilt was to be married on June 20 to Harry H. Cushing, Philadelphia society man, at the Ambassador Hotel.

At Vanderbilt Wedding

She had been introduced to society a little before that time, in a party at the Ritz-Carlton. I was there. I had a dress suit, hired. There were three or four hundred present, and I presume many of them wondered who I was.

I just walked in, handed my hat and cane to the butler and strolled into the reception room. Once in, I had no trouble. Every one supposed I was an invited guest. The hostess mails out hundreds of invitations, and in most cases does not know half of her guests, even though they are of the necessary social caliber.

There were about 200 at the wedding. I was there, too, because I had simply walked in. I had a fearful habit always of leaving my invitation cards at home, but they were seldom asked for.

The wedding was a great affair. At 5.30 we had dinner in the Italian Garden at the Ambassador Hotel. There was champagne. Oh, boy! I talked to various debutantes. They were wonderful, and I had no trouble, because of their graciousness and desire to impress everybody with their social talents.

Back to Brass Buttons

When the wedding was over, I returned and changed my dress suit for my brass-buttoned bellboy's outfit in the Park avenue apartment.

I also changed my demeanor, in answering calls for ice water, and in hoisting persons in tuxedos and full dress, who had been out in a second-class set, probably, while I was gallivanting about with the Vanderbilts and the Morgans.

By arranging my shifts, I was able to attend both afternoon and evening functions. By day a bellhop; by night a society man. By night an elevator operator; by day just a wealthy young man who indulged in afternoon teas.

Shortly after the wedding, at which I had a wonderful time and a wonderful dinner—free—I returned to Chicago for four weeks. A few days of ordinary existence palled on me, and I again donned a hired dress suit and attended the Pirates' ball in the Congress Hotel, at which hundreds of Chicago society folk had gathered.

As usual, I had no ticket. I didn't need any. Long usage had taught me how cooly to stare down the doorattendant, and ask him if one were supposed to buy a new ticket every time one chanced to leave for a smoke.

But Chicago's social set had little appeal for me. I longed for the drawing rooms of Park avenue, and for Newport. So, on June 21, I returned to New York to continue my social climbing.

And I did.

THIS is the second of a series of stories telling how Otto Nelson Hartman, seventeen-year-old Chicago bell-boy and bus-boy, discarded the greazy apron and stepped into Newport society, penniless, and became a young social lion—for three weeks. The first story, published by the Boston American last Saturday, told how he had pr. ared himself for his debut, and how he had rented a dress suit and cane—which, he says, is all that is necessary to break into society. If he hadn't made love to a young society man's girl he still might be getting away with it.

Newport society will say he did. In the next story, Mr. Hartman tells how he went to Newport and got a job as a bus-boy in a cheap lunchroom at $1 a day, and stepped from there into the estates and homes of society folk whose names are household by-words—Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Mrs. Arthur Curtis James, Albert Fayne Whitney, and others.

OTTO N. HARTMAN AS HE FOOLED NEWPORT SOCIETY

Here is Otto Hartman all dolled up in rented finery, ready to invade exclusive social functions as a young social biood. Here he is shown in his day suit. Wait till you see him in all his brilliance. He got away with it for a long while—until he made love to another fellow's girl. Sketches show him mingling with members of the "400" at exclusive society functions where he was received as a welcome guest.

AUTOS TAKE TOLL OF 6 LIVES

Five Other Persons Badly Injured in Crashes on New England Roads

Six persons were killed, and five were injured in automobile accidents in New England during the past twenty-four hours.

Patrick McCarthy, forty, of Whitinsville, and James Moriarty were fatally injured when an automobile in which they were riding struck another machine and then crashed into a trolley car at Uxbridge tonight.

McCarthy died at once and Moriarty expired today.

Police, after investigation, arrested Leon Remillard, Whitinsville, driver of the ill-fated car, on a charge of reckless driving.

Mrs. Grace Wallace, thirty-nine years old, of Bath, Me., was killed, and five passengers in the car in which she was riding were injured, when the car was struck by the Boston-bound Bangor express at Hillside crossing, on the State road between Brunswick, Me., and Freeport, Me.

DRIVER BREAKS LEG.

Arthur Williams, No. 485 High street, Bath, owner and driver of the car, received a fracture of the leg; his wife was severely injured in the back.

Miss Dinah Rillis, twenty years old, and Adaline Morse, both of Bath, were cut and bruised about the body. Louis Morse, ten years old, brother of Adeline, escaped with a severe shaking up and minor bruises.

SIGNAL IGNORED.

Despite the automatic signal that the train was approaching, three automobiles were sped over the blind crossing. The death car, the next in line, followed the others, and stalled on the tracks. The train rounded the curve and shattered the automobile before the occupants could escape.

Mrs. Wallace, the wife of a Bath sea captain, was dead when the train crew picked her up. The other injured persons were taken to Portland aboard the train, and transferred to an ambulance from the Maine General Hospital.

FRAMINGHAM GIRL KILLED.

Yallo Gonati, eleven years old, Waverley street, Framingham, was fatally injured when she was run down by an automobile near her home. The car was operated by Ralph K. Wardrope of Hopkinton. The child died at the Union Avenue Hospital, Framingham, soon after her arrival there.

David H. Wentz, twenty-five years old, of unknown address, died on the way to the Marlboro Hospital, Marlboro, after a truck of the Flinn Brothers' Carnival Shows, playing in Marlboro during the past week, skidded on a slippery road and overturned. Wentz, riding on the front seat, struck the ground with such force that his skull was fractured.

Henry Soucie of Springfield was killed when Edward Jordan, driver of the automobile in which he was riding, sideswiped a telephone pole on the Ludlow road, Springfield, in an effort to avoid hitting a speeding motorcycle. Soucie was hurled from the automobile and died soon afterward. He leaves a wife and two children.

MAYOR HYLAN HAS RESTLESS NIGHT

Saratoga Springs, Sept. 10. (I.N.S.)—Mayor John F. Hylan passed a restless night, according to reports from the home of his son-in-law, where the New York City executive is suffering from pneumonia.

Although the Mayor did not sleep much, his temperature was normal this morning. He had a little difficulty in breathing and his pulse raced a little, his general condition was about the same as yesterday.

Nina Rogers Is a Leader in Her Set of Pride's Crossing Colony, Betty Alden Observes

WITH her vivacious manner and keen interest in every imaginable sort of thing, the former Nina Higginson has always been a leader of her set.

Now that she is Mrs. Bernard F. Rogers, Jr., her "pals" will miss her, for she and her adventure-loving husband are making their Winter home in Chicago. However, the Summer months will probably find the popular bride of last March on the North Shore, where she has spent so many Summers at "Old Fort," the Pride's Crossing estate of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Lee Higginson. So that our "Who's News Along the North Shore" would be quite incomplete without her.

The one-time Nina Higginson was one of the first girls along the shore to adopt the gaily-colored bandannas worn in place of the more conventional chapeau. As I recall it, she had a particular penchant for ones of orange hue, which were most becoming to the wearer's dark hair, large brown eyes and olive complexion.

When the Francis Lee Higginsons—their Winter home is on Beacon street—announced the engagement of their daughter to young Rogers, society wasn't especially surprised. For the latter's fondness for travel and adventure quite equalled that of his bride-to-be. In fact, he was a passenger on board the tiny motor-boat, the "Specjacks," when that sturdy little craft made its way around the world. The "Specjacks" was the smallest motorboat to accomplish this feat, and naturally the trip was replete with all sorts of thrilling experiences. There were times when the engine stalled in the most inconvenient of places, and others when the supply of gasoline gave out in equally embarrassing places. To say nothing of bad weather in general and typhoons in particular.

Nina Rogers will find quite a Boston colony in the Windy City. There are Mr. and Mrs. Barrett Wendell (Barbara Higginson), the latter, I believe, a cousin of hers; as well as Prince and Princess Michael Cantacuzene (Clarisso Curtis), who are spending their first Winter in the Western city.

Mrs. Rogers' sister, Mrs. George H. Lyman, Jr. (Eleanor Higginson), is a leader of the younger married set at Manchester-by-the-Sea, where she and her husband have been occupying the Morgan homestead on Smith's Point this season. The Lymans, I believe, are leaving shortly for a trip to foreign shores.

MRS. BERNARD F. ROGERS, JR.
Mrs. Rogers (Nina Higginson) is an active member of Pride's Crossing colony. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Lee Higginson.

AMONG the folk planning to spend the Winter abroad is Mrs. Charles Thorndyke Parker, who has spent the Summer and will remain through the Autumn at "Cotshabble," her Wenham estate. Mrs. Parker's Winter home is in New York, though last Winter she spent in Chicago with relatives.

ONE of the important weddings of the month will be the marriage of Miss Geraldine Clark of Beacon street to Thomas P. Mandell of Hamilton and Boston.

ANITA STEWART DIVIDES HONOR

ANITA STEWART is to have competition in beauty in her new Cosmopolitan picture, "Cain and Mabel." She will not stand alone before the camera in this new film but will divide honors with a group of forty-two Broadway beauties from the Ziegfeld Follies, who are appearing in the picture under the direction of Ned Wayburn. Miss Stewart plays the role of Mabel Vandergrift, a musical comedy dancer. The scenes are being filmed at the Frolic Theatre, atop the New Amsterdam roof.

How combating film beautifies the teeth

You'll be surprised

Here is a test which will amaze and delight you.

It will tell you why winter teeth are seen everywhere today, and show you how to get them.

It will show how to bring to yourself and your family cleaner, safer, prettier teeth.

Why teeth cloud

You feel on your teeth a viscous film. Much of it resists the tooth brush, clings and stays.

Soon that film discolors, then forms dingy coats. That is how teeth lose beauty.

Film is also the teeth's great enemy. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. In the old days few escaped these troubles caused by film.

New methods now

Now there are ways to fight that film, which science has discovered. One acts to disintegrate the film at all stages of formation. The other removes it without harmful scouring.

Able dental authorities proved these methods effective. Then a new-type tooth paste was created to apply them daily. The name is Pepsodent.

Today leading dentists the world over advise it. And careful people of some 50 nations have adopted this new method.

Other new helps

Research also proved other things essential. Pepsodent multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva, also its starch digestant. One is to neutralize mouth acids, the other to digest starch deposits.

Pepsodent gives to both these agents manifold effect. Old-time tooth pastes brought just opposite results.

You will never go without these benefits when you learn how much they mean.

Protect the Enamel

Pepsodent disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

New beauty came to millions

Pepsodent has brought to millions whiter, prettier teeth. You see them now in every circle—teeth you envy, maybe. Now, in fairness to yourself, learn how people get them.

Send coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth become whiter as the cloudy coats disappear.

The results will surprise and delight you. Cut out coupon now.

Year's Best Selling Novel Reveals Mysterious Return of Youth and Beauty to Old Woman

START THIS BEST-SELLER HERE TODAY

A young and beautiful woman creates a sensation at a first night in New York by rising in her seat at the theatre and coolly surveying the audience through her glasses, after the European fashion. Lee Clavering, a brilliant newspaper writer, is immediately interested, and learns she is the image of a former society belle, Mary Ogden, though much younger than she should be at that time. He makes her acquaintance and finds she is Countess Josef Zattiany. He nearly guesses her secret. He asks her to marry him. He takes her to a gay studio party, after which she invites him home to hear her story of renewed youth. He is stunned by the revelation. Meanwhile, Janet Oglethorpe, flapper daughter of one of Clavering's intimate friends, confesses her love for him. Then Madam Zattiany agrees to marry him and they plan their honeymoon.

READ ON. THE THRILLS COME FAST

"I no longer want you to marry Madame Zattiany"

DURING the long walk back to the ferry she talked with a certain excitement. But it was of the woods of Austria, the carefully tended woods with their leaping stags, their winding paths where no trolley-cars overladen with commuters rushed shrieking by, their enchanting vistas with a green lake at the end, or a monastery, or a castle on a lofty rock.

She told him of the river Inn roaring through its gorges, with its solitary mills, its clustered old villages huddled at the foot of the heavy silent woods and forgotten by the world. The millers were all old men now, no doubt, and the poor villages inhabited only by women and children.

Or blinded and broken men who had dragged themselves back from the war to exist where they once had given life and energy to that quiet valley of the Inn. If this made her sad for a moment it was purely an impersonal sadness, and when they parted on the New York side of the ferry Clavering had forgotten his doubts and went back to his work with a light heart and an untroubled mind.

The play was almost finished, and its chances for swift production were far greater than is usually the case with the new adventurer into the most inhospitable of all fields of artistic endeavor. Adrian Hogarth, who had a play on Broadway every year, and Edwin Scores, who had recently exchanged the esteem of the few for the contempt of the Public, had read it act by act and given him the practical advice he needed. A dramatic critic always believes he knows more about plays than any one else until he attempts to write one, but Clavering at least, if not always modest, was too anxious to succeed not to welcome all the help he could get.

They even "sat in" with him during the final revision, and the dispute was hot over the last act, an act so daring in technique they were loath to believe that even Clavering, whose striking gifts they had always recognized, could "put it over." Moreover, there was only one woman on the American stage who could act it and that was Margaret Anglin.

If it didn't appeal to her he might as well duck it. The younger actresses, clever as some of them were, had so far given no evidence of sustained emotional power. During the entire act no one was on the stage but the woman and she sat at a telephone talking with the man who controlled her destiny. Not only must that one-sided dialogue give as sharp and clear an idea of what the man was saying as if he had been present, with the vivid personality, the gestures and the mobile face he must have for the part, but the conversation, beginning in happy confidence, ran the gamut of the emotions, portraying a war of wills and souls, and rising to inexorable spiritual tragedy.

It was a scene whose like had never before been attempted without both protagonists on the stage, and it lasted twenty-five minutes; a scene as difficult to write as to act; but the two playwrights admitted that in the deft use of words which, without repetitions by the woman, left the audience in no doubt what the man was saying, made it almost possible to see him, and in the rising scale of emotion, the act was a surpassingly brilliant piece of work.

Clavering rewrote it fourteen times and Hogarth and Scores were almost as excited as himself, although it was the last sort of thing either would have "tackled." Whatever the originality of their own ideas they were careful to stick to the orthodox in treatment, knowing the striking lack of originality in audiences.

Gora Dwight was more enthusiastic than he had ever known her to be over anything and one night he read the play to a select few at her house. Albott was there and two other critics, as well as Susan Forbes and her distinguished consort. De Witt Turner.

The critics preserved their ferocious and frozen demeanor common to first-nights and less common where cocktails were plentiful. Not for them to encourage a tyro and a confrere, as if they were mere friends and well wishers. They left that to others, but after the last act had been discussed with fury, Abbott arose and said with a yawn:

"Oh, well, what's the use? It's about the hardest play for actors ever written and the audience will either crack on that but act or pass away of their own emotions. It would be the former if any one else had written the damn thing, but it'll go because it isn't long yet for the Clavering luck to break."

"You'll get it in the neck, old man, one of these days, and when you least expect it. You're one of Fate's pets, her pampered pup, and she'll purr you until she has you beaufted, and then she'll give you such a skinning that you'll wish you were little Jimmy Jones, cub reporter, with a snub nose and freckles. I only hope to be in at the death to gloat." Then he shot out his hand. "Good stuff, Clavey. Congratulate you. Count on me."

And he drank a highball and waddled out.

The others, expressing their congratulations in various keys, soon followed, and Clavering was left alone with Gora. He was flushed and restless, but he doubted if he would feel happier on the first night with the entire Sophisticate body howling for "author." He had been more afraid of Abbott and the two other critics than he, a hardened critic himself, had dared admit.

Gora watched him from her ottoman, where she sat stark up-right, as usual, and smoking calmly. But her cold gray eyes were softer than usual. She knew exactly how he felt and rejoiced with him, but her expression in the long silence grew more and more thoughtful. Finally she threw away her cigarette and said abruptly:

"Clavey."

"Yes, Gora." He had been wandering about the room, but he halted in front of her, smiling. She smiled also. "You do look so happy. But you're such a mercurial creature that you'll probably wake up tomorrow morning with your soul steeped in indigo."

"Oh, no, I won't. It isn't as if I had nothing else in my life." Gora alone knew of his engagement to Mary Zattiany.

"That is it. I want to say something. I know you'll be angry with me, but just remember that I am not speaking as a friend, merely as an artist."

"What are you driving at?" Some of the exultation faded from Clavering's face.

"This. I no longer want you to marry Madame Zattiany. She's served her purpose."

Clavering stared, then laughed. "Little you know about it."

"I'll know more about it than you think. Remember it is my business to know people's mental inside down to the roots—"

"Not such a good metaphor, that."

"Let it pass. I'm not to be diverted. I've seen her several times alone, you know. She lunched here the other day, and I purposely asked no one else. I believe I know her well enough to put her in a book, complex, both naturally and artificially, as she is. Maybe I shall some day. You once told me that she had a character of formidable strength and the 'will to power'—something like that. Well, I agree with you, and I don't think you'd stand a chance of becoming a great artist if you married her."

"You're talking utter rot."

"Am I? Tell me that a year hence if you marry her."

"It? I'd tear the artist in me out by the roots before I'd give him up."

SECRETS OF HEALTH

HOW YOUR FOOD NOURISHES YOU

By Charles A. L. Reed, M. D.
(Former President of the American Medical Association)

IF you understand some of the things that must happen to your food, some of the processes through which it must pass, before it is of any value to you, you will probably come nearer doing the part that is under control of your will and your habits.

Dr. Reed.

Thus you, as you know, masticate food, digest some of it in your mouth, swallow it, digest more of it in your stomach, and still other parts it not more of your food in your intestines.

But food, even after it is digested, doesn't nourish your body if it remains in your intestines.

The nourishment has to be taken out of your intestines and carried to your brain, nerves, muscles, bones, skin, lungs, liver—in short to every tissue, structure and organ in the body—to do you any good.

Now, the process by which the nourishment gets into the blood from your intestines and out of your blood at the tissues—in short, just what happens—is one of the most beautiful, as it is one of the most vital, processes in nature.

In the first place, digestion has reduced the food to a condition of extreme fineness, as fine as are the finest particles of ink when you drop a little into a glass of clear water.

If you take some of the water with ink in it and pour it into a little cup or cornucopia, of thin porous paper, you will see that the water goes through the paper and that the ink goes through with it.

If you place the lower end of the filled cornucopia, in a glass of clear water, you will discover that the clear water in the glass is becoming stained with the ink.

Or if you put the ink water in the glass and the clear water in the cornucopia, you will discover that the ink travels in the other direction.

This movement of finely-divided matter augmented by water through membranes or tissues, is governed by a natural law, sometimes called "osmosis," and sometimes the law of absorption. And the direction the fluids travel is determined by the physical properties of the two mixtures or liquids.

The food in the intestines, to reach your system, must be so fine that it will pass through the meshes of tissues which, like the paper of the cornucopia, act as strainers or filters.

It can be seen from this that all food which has not been thus reduced to necessary fineness—first by mastication and next by successive stages of digestion—cannot be utilized for the actual purposes of nutrition. It must remain as waste in your intestines either to be carried off or to undergo fermentative and putrefactive changes.

But the nourishment which has been taken up, or absorbed, by the blood, is now carried by the blood-stream until it reaches the little twig ends of the arteries, called "capillaries," from which it is deposited in the tissues in accordance with precisely this same law of osmosis.

WAYS OF A HUSBAND

SEQUEL TO "WHEN A GIRL MARRIES"

By Ann Lisle

BUT after I turned from making my arrangements with Park for the following evening I found that I was to have another guest thrust upon me, for with suspicious sweetness, Rosa inquired if I was giving a party—without her.

"I'm not in much of a mood for party giving," I confessed truthfully. "But whenever we have guests to dine—you're welcome if you care to come."

"You are blue about Neal, aren't you?" asked Rosa with what seemed like poisoned sweetness.

"Naturally I am worried. I don't know where he is. He may be sick. He may have met with foul play. I'm in terror for his life—not his honesty, Rosa," I cried desperately.

Her answer astounded me.

"Of course, the boy is not a crook!" said Rosa.

"Oh!" I cried in great relief. "You see the truth——"

"Yes," she went on sweetly. "I see. And if I were you, White Lilac, never should I forgive Jaime for thinking my brother was a thief."

Rosa's declaration that were she in my place she would never forgive Jim for his doubts of Neal, was her parting shot. I've an idea she came to deliver just about this message. Having scored her point, she went, leaving me behind with the feeling of having been completely duped.

Later in the day Ralph Lacy came to report the various agencies he had put to work searching for Neal. It was an imposing and heartening list. But at the end of his cheering revelations I felt that I had to confess the possible blunder I'd made in letting Rosa force my hand and my confidence.

"Don't worry about that!" said Ralph. "You were amply justified in telling her just what you did. And the fact that she acknowledged her faith in Neal shows that things don't look black for the boy at all—and that his sister's a pretty good pleader."

"I can impress everyone but Jim," I said bitterly, remembering Rosa's declaration, the one part of our conversation I couldn't tell Ralph.

"Good old Jim's so buried under his own prejudices that he can't see straight," said Ralph tolerantly.

"Thank you." I cried gratefully. "And now I've a few things to tell you. Have you been at your office today?"

"Not once," replied Ralph. "But I've seen the papers—and I know from the front page displays that your friend Mabel Storrs is married."

He stopped abruptly, refraining with characteristic chivalry from any further comment. But I felt that the frankness on which our friendship is built warranted absolute honesty now.

"Is Mr. Buchanan—so—impossible?" I floundered.

FIRPO WILL WIN IS FEAR THAT POSSESSES JACK DEMPSEY

CHAMPION LACKS OLD WALLOP

By JACK CONWAY

Dempsey and Firpo!

The BIG fight will monopolize boxing interest this week.

The Polo Grounds, New York, will be jammed to capacity when the Champion and the Wild Bull of the Pampas enter the ring on Friday night. It would be possible to fill an arena three times as large so great is the interest in the battle for the heavyweight championship of the world.

Of course you have picked the winner.

That's the popular pastime nowadays.

Most people like Dempsey's chances.

We also favor the champion NOW.

But we may change our mind before the day of the BIG quarrel.

FIRPO MAY WIN, IS TIP ON BIG BOUT.

From a source very close to Dempsey we get this tip:

"Don't be surprised if FIRPO WINS. Dempsey has become a society boxer. He is too careful about protecting his good looks to open up and fight as he did when he crushed Jess Willard at Toledo and later knocked Carpentier at Jersey City.

"Dempsey is worth close to half a million dollars. And when a man has that much money he no longer has the brute fighting instinct that enables one to win a world's championship.

"At Toledo Dempsey was much like the hunter who had not tasted food for three days and then saw a well fed deer. He knocked Willard down just as quickly as the hunter shot the deer.

"The same hunter would not be so quick to shoot if he were not hungry. Being worth half a million dollars has made Dempsey indifferent to old-fashioned training and fighting methods. He has spent too much of his time in the vicinity of the Saratoga race track and the gathering spots of the society folk, for one who is to meet a savage aggressive fighter who can knock down an elephant with one of his tremendous right hand punches.

FIRPO GIVING ALL OF HIS ATTENTION TO BOUT.

"They call Firpo a 'sucker.' Perhaps he is a 'sucker' to train like a Trojan every day and to devote all of his time and attention to just one thought—the knocking out of Jack Dempsey.

"Don't be surprised if FIRPO WINS. He's the best short end bet since Dempsey walloped Willard."

Think that over.

We are apt to get an idea that a champion is unbeatable. It is a popular stunt to pick the title-holder to win. This writer has boosted his percentage for picking winners by naming challengers to bowl over champions this Summer.

It has been a hard, cruel year for the kings of the various boxing divisions.

Ring thrones have been toppling.

Will Dempsey be the next to go down to defeat?

"Tiger Jack" looked very ordinary against Tom Gibbons at Shelby. True, he boxed like a perfect gentleman and didn't appear to tire. But he lacked that old sip that enabled him to smash his way through the ranks of the tough opposition and mount the heights of pugilistic success.

SOFT LIVING MAY HAVE SLOWED DEMPSEY UP.

Dempsey lacked that something in the Gibbons bout that has made him a popular idol with millions of Americans. He let drive with heavy punches, but they didn't seem to have their old crushing power behind them.

Four years of soft living since he won from Willard may have had their effect upon Dempsey. Pictures, like other athletes, don't go on forever.

Dempsey has worked harder for his tussle with Firpo than he has for any encounter during his ring career. When speaking for publication the champion talks lightly of the challenger. Down deep in his heart he knows Firpo is dangerous. He realizes his own punch didn't work as it should at Shelby.

Dempsey, nervous, restless, eager for the night of the battle to arrive, figures his experience will gain for him the victory. Yet he has a fear. It is that FIRPO WILL WIN!

Dempsey May Be Fifth Champion to Lose Title at Polo Grounds

A MORE puissant power than Firpo may be arrayed against Dempsey next Friday night at the Polo Grounds. Fate may occupy a ringside seat. That ancient gentleman has been a frequent visitor there this passing Summer. He seems to bear a wholesome prejudice against champions. He was there when Kilbane fought Criqui; when Criqui fought Dundee; when Wilde fought Villa; when Wilson fought Greb. Champions all until Fate frowned upon them. Now comes Dempsey to play his wits and his strength against the brute force of the Argentine giant and to gamble with the gentleman of Destiny. If Dempsey becomes prostrated at the feet of the Pampas Bull he will be the seventh champion to be shorn of his title this Summer—a record contained in no other page of pugilistic history. Besides the four upsets at the Polo Grounds, Bernstein took Dundee's pet junior lightweight title away in a scrap at the Velodrome and Mike McTigue deprived Battling Siki of his meal ticket over in Ireland.

Jack Conway to See Dempsey and Firpo in Training

Jack Conway, boxing editor of the Boston American, has gone to Saratoga, N. Y., to get the real "inside" information on the condition of Jack Dempsey and just what the champion may be expected to do in his battle with Luis Firpo on Friday night at New York.

Jack will also journey to Atlantic City to see Firpo in action. He will then give readers of the Boston American the low down on the Wild Bull of the Pampas.

Conway is considered the greatest authority on boxing in America. He holds the world's record for picking winners and may be relied upon to get the real "dope" on Dempsey and Firpo.

Of course Jack will tell which boxer he expects to win after he has visited the camps of the rival heavyweights.

FIRPO SAYS IT'S THE PUNCH COUNTS

By Universal Service.

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 10.—Luise Angel Firpo, confident in his own heart that he will be champion of the world next Saturday morning, gave the girls a treat. In the presence of a big crowd which included a score of the latest bathing beauties drawn by the pageant the south American aspirant for Jack Dempsey's crown put on the best boxing exhibition of his training period.

He went six fast rounds, two each with Joe McCann, John Lester Johnson and Bob Fitzsimmons, Jr. There were no knockouts or even knockdowns, but in every round Firpo showed speed and science in marked contrast to his earlier showings.

Firpo will leave Atlantic City Wednesday for New York. He plans to rest all day in themetropolis Thursday and will box three times easy Friday up to the hour of his battle with Dempsey.

Firpo will go into the ring with Dempsey confident that some time during the contest he will be able to put in an effective right which will sound taps for the champion.

"It's the punch, not the odds that counts," he said through an interpreter.

MEDDIE DYER WINS IN HIS FIRST START

St. Louis, Sept. 10.—Meddie Dyer, recruit pitcher for St. Louis, shut out Chicago, 3 to 0, in the first game he has started this season.

Dyer had the edge over Kaufmann in a duel.

The Cardinal runs were scored as a result of three hits in the second inning and a home run by Smith into the right-field bleachers in the third.

DUNDEE SILENT ON POSTPONED DATE

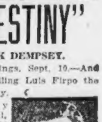
New York, Sept. 10.—Johnny Dundee didn't step into the Boxing Commission's office to inform the powers whether he will fight Leonard on the 28th or not. So far John has declared he will not go through with the match on the grounds that Johnston had no right to postpone and that his actions were that of cancellation. If this were so Johnson would immediately make arrangements for some other fight on that date.

DEMPSEY READY TO MEET "MAN OF DESTINY"

By JACK DEMPSEY.

Saratoga Springs, Sept. 10.—And now they're calling Luis Firpo the man of destiny.

If memory serves me well, then it would seem that they also applied that to Georges Carpentier of France.



Jack Dempsey

Whenever I think of that battle with the Frenchman I get something of a chuckle out of how some folks tried to use the superstitious stuff and the hocus-pocus to get me all out of fighting tune with myself and send me into the ring shivering with the fear of the jinx, and stuff like that.

Francois Deschamps was labeled as the hypnotizing kid of the world. He was supposed to have such mystic powers that if he got just one look into my eyes he could cast such a spell over me, that, at a word from him, I'd jump right through the ropes and run along sixteen or seventeen boulevards.

CALLED DESCHAMPS.

Before the fight began, Deschamps—figuring he might get me all gummed up as far as nerve was concerned—came over to my corner while the taping was being done, and kept trying to squint into my eyes.

I avoided 'em for awhile—for a purpose. And then, when Francois got especially fussy about those bandages, I whirled right at him, looked him right square in those supposedly magical eyes—and I said a few things.

After it was all over, I guess if any hypnotizing was done I was the boy who did it. For Francois took himself right away from my corner and never did look back.

NOT SUPERSTITIOUS.

If I had been a bit superstitious I guess maybe all the stories might have worried me a bit. But I'm not superstitious. The only thing, in my opinion, which wins and loses fights is ability to hand out a beating a little harder than the other fellow hands you.

They can call Firpo the man of destiny—if they wish. Maybe he is. But before he becomes that little thing, and before he whips me, he'll find that he's been in one single fight that will have rougher going than all his other fights put together.

KID WOLFE MEETS JEROME WEDNESDAY

PATERSON WINS BOSTON AMERICAN LONG DISTANCE SWIM

WATER FOR RACE WAS ICE COLD

Walter J. Paterson, of Bridgeport, Conn., won the Boston American's Boston Light swim. He swam to within a mile and a quarter of Boston Light, and was taken from the water unconscious.

Of the eighteen starters, none achieved the goal. Paterson made the best showing in point of distance covered, but failed to defeat some of the best talent in New England.

PATERSON WAS IN WATER ALMOST SEVEN HOURS.

Paterson's time for the entire course from the Chelsea Bridge to the point just beyond Big Light, where he was taken from the water, was six hours and forty-eight minutes. Michael Wrenn, his nearest competitor, was taken from the water near Buoy 11.

This is the second time this season that Paterson has won a swim over the course. On the first occasion this season was disqualified because he was not a member of the S. C. A. A. U.

In the Boston American swim, as in the first Boston Light swim, Paterson easily demonstrated his superiority.

He will be presented with the Imperial Maxey Cup Trophy.

WATER WAS DEATHLY COLD; CONDITIONS WERE BAD AS

Conditions for a race were bad. The water was decidedly cold. Then, again, they were obliged to fight against a strong southeast wind which kicked up a nasty sea into their faces.

Fourteen swimmers who represent the pick of New England competed against the others from Hydes Pond to the Chelsea Bridge. Then the long swim began. About one dozen of the men started the race in the water, but only took the water.

The men were pretty evenly bunched until Castle Island was neared. Then the process of "separating the wheat from the chaff" set in with deadly earnestness. As the leading swimmers passed the island, only ten men were left in the race. Eight had quit.

JOHN JARVIS BATTLED PATERSON FOR LEAD.

As the remaining swimmers surged on into the harbor beyond Castle Island Paterson and John Jarvis of Fitchburg battled for the lead, both making powerful bids for the Par silver trophy. Jarvis was trailed by James Twomey and Arthur Rose.

Mario Capelloni, a Roxbury youth, swam well in fifth place and slowly overhauled Twomey. Behind Rose were Frank Murphy, Jacob Braff, Mike Wrenn, John Keefe and Dan Cantabe.

Paterson and Michael Wrenn alone remained of the sixteen starters to battle for the lead. Paterson at the time was a mile and one-half in front of Wrenn.

At four o'clock there came a change in tide which brought the full brunt of nearly a gale of tide to bear against the swimmers. Wrenn collapsed just as he passed Nix's Mate and Bug Light.

At the end, Percy Adam, of Roxbury, exerted every atempt to sink beneath the surface, right before his mother, Joseph Sweeney, forced him into the water after him, averting a possible tragedy.

From Castle Island to Spectacle Island, Jarvis, the Finnish merman, matched Paterson stroke for stroke. As they swept past Spectacle Island the pace began to tell on the Finn, and he slowed down his stroke. A moment later he collapsed and was taken from the water.

With the collapse of Jarvis, Paterson assumed the lead. He was never headed. Nor was he again threatened as he battled his way through the heavy seas.

Fast on the heels of Paterson's pace-making was the assault of Twomey, Rose and Arthur Ross, the jockeying for second place at times becoming spirited.

With their leader, Mario Capelloni headed the second pack. But he, too, proved incapable of standing the gruelling pace up the battle-swept Mystic River course.

Paterson, the sole remaining survivor, proved his mastership of Bug Light by swimming around it and heading for the finish line. He was given a rousing welcome by a large crowd of enthusiasts at the Mystic Yacht Club, Medford Square.

Manager Smith will act as trainer for all the fellows.

Paterson, who is employed as a [illegible] in Bridgeport, Conn., is a member of the Mystic Yacht Club, Medford Square.

The boat was headed for Bug Light where Paterson was revived.

Taken all in all, the lighthouse swim is one of the most unusual swims ever conducted by the Boston American. Starting at Chelsea St. Bridge and ending at Bug Light, a distance of [illegible] miles, with a strong southeast wind kicking up a nasty sea into their faces, the swimmers battled their way through the heavy seas.

PATERSON WINS BOSTON AMERICAN LONG DISTANCE SWIM

WATER FOR RACE WAS ICE COLD

Walter J. Paterson, of Bridgeport, Conn., won the Boston American's Boston Light swim. He swam to within a mile and a quarter of Boston Light, and was taken from the water unconscious.

Of the eighteen starters, none achieved the goal. Paterson made the best distance, his greater endurance enabled him to defeat some of the best talent in New England.

PATERSON WAS IN WATER ALMOST SEVEN HOURS.

Paterson's time for the entire course from Castle Island Bridge to the point just beyond Boog Light, where he was taken from the water, was six hours and forty eight minutes. Michael Wrenn, his nearest competitor, was taken from the water near Buoy 11.

This is the second time this season that Paterson has won a swim over this course. On the first occasion he was disqualified because he was not a member of the N. S. A. U.

In the Boston American swim, as in the Castle Island swim, Paterson easily demonstrated his superiority.

He will represent the Bridgeport Y. M. C. A. in the Cup Trophy.

WATER WAS BY THIS COLD. CONDITIONS WERE BAD AS

Cold as was the water for a race were had. The water was down to 61 degrees. The swimmers were obliged to find some sort of a way to keep warm while waiting for the start. Paterson and Wrenn kept moving constantly, while the others huddled in the boats.

Eighteen swimmers who represented clubs from all parts of New England and from as far away as Canada, left the Castle Island Bridge at the start. The bridge was lined with thousands of spectators who lined the bridge and cheered the men as they took the water.

The men were pretty evenly bunched until Castle Island was passed. Then the process of "separating the wheat from the chaff" set in with deadly earnestness. As the leading swimmers passed the head, only ten men were left in the race. Eight had quit.

JOHN JARVIS BATTLED PATERSON FOR LEAD.

As the giant swimmers struck out into the bay beyond Castle Island Paterson and John Jarvis of Providence battled for the lead. Both took a powerful breast stroke. Far in the rear sailed Joseph Twohig and Arthur Ross.

Making a good showing in the early swim was Paul Berry, a youth who won his fifth place and nearly overhauled Twohig. He and his mates Frank Murphy, Jacob Hoeft, Mike Wrenn, John Keefe and Dana Bilton.

Paterson and Michael Wrenn alone remained of the eighteen starters to battle it out from Paterson at the time was a mile and one half in front of Wrenn.

At four o'clock there came a change in the which brought the full brunt of hostile wind and tide to bear against the two men. Wrenn collapsed first, as he passed Nix's Mate and Bird Buoy 11.

At this point, Percy Acon, of Roxbury, overcome by a stroke, sank beneath the surface, only to be kept afloat by his trainer, Joseph Scannell, four strokes into the water after him, averting a possible tragedy.

From Castle Island to Spectacle Island Jarvis, the Finnish merman, matched Paterson stroke for stroke. As they swept past Spectacle Island the pace began to tell on the Finn, and he slowed down his stroke. A moment later he collapsed and was taken from the water.

With the collapse of Jarvis, Peterson assumed the lead. He was never headed. Nor was he again threatened as he battled his way through the heavy seas.

Far in the rear, about one half a mile back, Twohig and Arthur Ross were battling for second place. Further back were Murphy, Berry and Hoeft.

With only two miles to go Paterson was in the best of shape. He was not tired. He was not winded. He was not exhausted. He was simply in the best of condition.

Paterson, the sole remaining survivor, pressed his way past Bug Light. He was met by the launch, which, although it had followed him for many miles, had not been seen by him for hours. As he was met by Sam Bester, Manager of the Boston American swim, Paterson was seen to smile in the water. He was met by Joseph Rosenau and Manuel Tonery, who rowed him into the boat, unconscious.

The boat was headed for Bug Light where Pat Dunn was waiting.

It took all in all, the lighthouse swim was one of the best managed swims ever conducted in the Boston American. Sam Bester, Manager of the swim, with his assistants, Joseph Rosenau and Manuel Tonery, planned every detail of the swim to the minutest detail. Paterson, the winner of the swim, was highly praised by the manner in which the Boston American managed the swim.

The Boston American is deeply grateful to Clerk of Courses Gus Wm. Penal, Commissioner Dr. David Johnson, who kindly offered the George A. Hibbard, city steamship, to officials, and other officials whose efforts made the Boston American swim that success it was.

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

It's an ill wind. The Pacific Coast, and particularly its chief ports, including Seattle, will doubtless experience a rush of business for the rebuilding and restocking of the vast devastated area in Japan. We in the East have thought chiefly of the newly-created demand for steel. But the lumber industry of the Northwest stands to benefit enormously, as do the great [illegible] Japanese buildings are constructed of wood. Hardware companies may expect steel and concrete structures, provided the earthquakes do not prove them unsafe. Other industries, too, will be stimulated. 100,000 JEWS IN GREATER HUB OBSERVANCE

The year 5684 according to the Jewish calendar begins at sundown tonight when 100,000 Jews in Greater Boston in conjunction with 15,000,000 all over the world will observe services for the Jewish New Year, called Rosh Hashonah, the most solemn holiday of the year.

For two days the Jews all over the world suspend their business and work and with religious services and fears at their homes celebrate the arrival of the New Year. Hundreds of thousands of New Year greeting cards at present are being sent throughout the United States and foreign countries.

In many of the leading synagogues and temples throughout the State rabbis and prominent laymen will read greetings from President Coolidge, Governor Cox, Senators Lodge and Walsh, Mayor Curley, Louis E. Kirstein and others.

President Coolidge points out that the Jewish New Year is a reminder of the debt which the modern world owes to the Jewish race, and their wonderful culture. "The occasion," says the President, "is one of significance, not merely to the people of Jewish faith and race, but to all who have been the inheritors of some part in the splendid estate of leadership, spirituality, and the service which they have given to the world for the common advantage."

"The Jews of Boston," writes Mayor Curley, "represent a respect for fine law and regard for the rights of every citizen, and in their consideration for the sick and aged of their own race furnish an example of charity and kindness that if emulated by all other citizens, would prove an immense blessing to our city."

AUTO CRASH VICTIM BURIED TOMORROW

Miss Coupal was riding with three McDonald sisters, the Misses Agnes, Eileen and Mary McDonald of No. 938 East Broadway, South Boston. The rest of their machine was struck by the fast moving passenger train. The McDonald sisters were buried beneath the debris, but will recover. Mrs. A. Coupal, mother of the dead woman, has been in a state of collapse ever since the news of her daughter's death was brought to her.

TRAVEL BRIEFS

NATIONAL AND INTERNATIONAL

About forty New England ticket agents, including several from Boston, are attending the annual convention of the American Association of Railroad Ticket Agents, at Portland, Ore.

A number of the New England representatives joined a large party of eastern and southern railroad ticket agents who left Chicago in two special trains via the Chicago & North Western Railway-Union Pacific system. This trip will take the form of an educational tour and will include many of the famous scenic localities of the West, such as Denver, Rocky Mountain National Park, Colorado Springs, Royal Gorge, Salt Lake City, Yellowstone National Park and other places.

The idea back of the trip is that by seeing the wonders of the West themselves, the agents will be better able to serve the traveling public desiring to visit these localities.

SEABOARD OFFICIAL HERE

Thomas Ludwig, passenger agent of the Seaboard Air Line Railway at Washington, D. C., has been spending a few days in Boston. Mr. Luckett is well known to hundreds of New Englanders as for several years he has been associated with A. Blanc, New England passenger agent of the Seaboard, to Miami during the Winter months, and has assisted homeward bound New Englanders in making their arrangements.

PREPARES FOR HEAVY TRAFFIC

The first of a lot of sixty locomotives built according to special specifications by the Baldwin Locomotive Works, has recently been received by the Burlington Route.

These engines are designed primarily for high speed freight service, but are so scientifically balanced that they may be interchangeably and efficiently used in slow freight service and, in emergency, in heavy passenger traffic service as well. The cost is approximately $55,000 or $3,300,000 for the lot.

More than a mile of tubes is contained in each boiler, and live steam is used to heat the water in the tender before it is pumped into the boilers, and automatic coal pushers, which lessen the work of the fireman, shove the coal forward in the tender. These engines are expected to produce decidedly economical and effective operating results.

HEAVY PULLMAN PATRONAGE

A pamphlet issued by the Rock Island Lines gives a summary of information contained in the third annual report of the Rock Island Lines for 1922, many of which are of vital public interest. The report shows that the transcontinental specialized Pullman cars to a much greater degree than they did in 1921, despite the general depression, while freight service during 1922 was increased over the year previous by 7,072,066 miles. This represents the movements of loaded cars only. During 1922 the road paid as much in pensions to its retired employes as it paid in salaries to its general officers, and paid in taxes nearly double the amount paid to its stockholders as dividends. A summary of the new equipment ordered includes 60 freight locomotives and 20 passenger locomotives, at a cost of $4,742,426, and 50 steel suburban cars, 500 coal cars, 500 box cars, 500 automobile cars, 250 flat cars and 250 refrigerator cars, at a cost of $5,022,327.50.

WILL BE LEGION DELEGATE.

Paul Quimby, commander of Beverly Post of the American Legion, attended the convention at Marblehead during the week and expects to be among those who will go to the National Convention which will be held at San Francisco next month.

Mr Quimby, who is New England traveling passenger agent of the Seaboard Air Line Railway, served with the artillery overseas.

VIA CANADIAN ROCKIES

The passenger department of the Canadian Pacific Railway has issued an elaborate folder, profusely illustrated with photographs of characteristic scenes, entitled "Pacific Coast Tours Through the Canadian Pacific Rockies." The folder describes in detail the many places visited during the various tours, including Banff, Lake Louise, Windermere Valley, and the several other valleys and canyons scattered throughout that section of the country. Visits to the large cities, such as Seattle, Vancouver, Tacoma and Spokane, are freely shown, and a map covering a trip to Alaska and the Yukon are given. The folder also contains a list showing the height of the various towns above sea level and above the nearby valleys. A special feature is a colored map of the United States and Canada which shows in detail the main line and branches of the road and its principal connections. Copies may be obtained upon request to Lewis R. Hart, general agent, No. 405 Boylston street, Boston.

ISSUES "JUBILEUM-BOOK"

In connection with the fiftieth anniversary of the establishment of the company, the Holland-American Line published recently an interesting and valuable collection of the historical records of transatlantic shipping, entitled "Jubileum-Book." This line now operates a large fleet of passenger and freight steamers to all parts of the world, among them some which are numbered as the finest ships afloat.

This book, of more than one hundred large-size pages of excellent quality paper, and with front cover decorated in gold, is the work of Dr. M. G. De Boer, who had at his disposal complete records of the company as well as authentic data relating to conditions existing up to the establishment of the Holland-American Line. The volume, printed in Amsterdam, is copiously illustrated with reproductions of old prints through the fifty years have been concerned with the affairs and success of the line, as well as pictures of various vessels of the fleet and scenes in Holland and in New York, the principal American terminus of the line. In addition there are various charts relating to operating growth of the company and its financial affairs.

Towards the end of the volume following reference to the fact that "the industries of Holland are indebted in a measure, if not for their existence, certainly for their prosperity, to the shipping companies that bring them their raw material and carry their products to all parts of the world," occurs this statement:

"What has further been the significance to the company for the mighty State on the other side of the ocean? It may be pointed out that it has assisted in distributing the products of America throughout the Old World; it has carried tens and hundreds of thousands, for whom existence in the old continent had become too difficult, to the young nation on the other side, where these found a future and also contributed to the accomplished prosperity of the New World.

"For years also the company has been directing many people from America who came to look up the names of their forefathers in the old seventeenth-century records of birth- and marriages and who also came to enjoy the exceptional beauty of the old Dutch towns and the wonderful works of art that enlightened them.

"Hence the company that is now celebrating its Golden Jubilee, in more senses than one, became a link between the two States that have so many points in common in their history, the great Union and little Holland, the latter the country that offered a place of refuge to the Pilgrim Fathers and whose flag once floated over the mouth of the Hudson."

NOTED RUSSIAN 1924 SYMPHONY CONDUCTOR

Serge Koussevitsky, conductor of the Moscow Imperial Orchestra, of Moscow, Russia, will succeed Pierre Monteux as conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra next Fall, it was announced by Judge Frederick P. Cabot, president of the board of trustees of the Boston orchestra.

Koussevitsky, one of the most celebrated conductors in Europe, appears this season in Berlin, Prague, Paris, London, and other European musical centres, before coming to Boston, where he will make his first American appearance.

Monteaux is expected to return from Paris within the next few weeks, and will immediately begin rehearsals for the season's opening at Symphony Hall, on Columbus Day. Monteaux is leaving in Paris, where he will rejoin them at the conclusion of the season.

Koussevitsky has been an orchestra conductor since he was twelve years old, his initial appearance being in the village of Tver, in Northern Russia. On being graduated from the Moscow Conservatory, he became a virtuoso on the double bass in the Moscow Imperial Opera Orchestra. Since then his rise in the musical world has been steady.

'HAP' WARD GOES TO JOIN 'FOLLIES'

"Hap" Ward, at one time one of the most famous comedians of the American stage and of the vaudeville team, Ward and Vokes, has again heard the call of the footlights.

Florenz Ziegfeld in casting his new "Follies" for the season to open in New York in a few weeks, thought of Mr. Ward and made him a most flattering proposition. After much deliberation, he accepted and has left for New York to begin rehearsals.

DE VALERA 'VICTORY' MEETING TONIGHT

The meeting has been arranged to celebrate the victory in the Irish elections of Eamon De Valera and other Irish Republican candidates, who have won fifty-five seats in the Irish Parliament. The meeting will be under the auspices of the Michael Davitt Council of the Ancient Association for the Recognition of the Irish Republic.

Have You an Automobile?

If Not, Excuse Being a Wing-Clipped Goose

Copyright, 1923, Star Co.

Of all the year this is the best time, as Fall approaches, for making an automobile really worth while

The air is full of life, the country is beautiful as the leaves turn, and the roads near the big cities are less crowded than in mid-Summer

There is no better relaxation for children after a week at school than a ride into the country on Saturday, with their young friends to add pleasure to the day—a family united in its pleasures is a happy family

For those that are grown, a motor trip in Autumn is most restful, inspiring and instructive

At the week-end, to prepare for the struggle and work of Monday morning, there is nothing better than motoring away from stones and bricks, to brown fields and colored woods. The Autumn sky offers inspiration and strength to whoever will come

Not to have an automobile is to be just HALF alive

One of the saddest sights in life is a wild goose, caught, its wings clipped, so that it cannot fly, wandering about a pasture with the tame geese, looking up wistfully as the wild birds fly past

Many humans are like that wild goose and, unlike him, their condition is their own fault.

Once the human race was entirely wingless. It moved slowly over the earth at such speed as its own legs or a horse could supply.

Then came steam and the locomotive to carry human being in CROWDS on journeys of necessity.

Now there is the automobile, the individual wings for every family, for every little group and for every little individual.

You wouldn't think much of a goose that COULD fly if it did NOT fly.

The man that MIGHT have wings, that MIGHT go out to see the country, the lakes, the hills, the beautiful Autumn sunsets, and come home feeling that he is part of the world and KNOWS THE EARTH ON WHICH HE LIVES, is to be pitied if he lets the chance go by him.

But there need be no such man.

Some suffer from lack of imagination. They have walked or ridden in street cars or trains all their lives. They know that millions have found happiness, closer family life, better health, thanks to the automobile. But they have put it off.

They have said, perhaps, "I cannot afford it, JUST YET." The fact is that they cannot afford NOT to have an automobile.

The most expensive thing is poor health.

The most depressing thing is a dull life.

We are on the earth for a few years. We ought to see the earth, travel it, know it, and possess it.

And that the automobile alone makes possible.

If you haven't got an automobile, GET ONE, the best that you can afford. And remember that for every purse there is an automobile, within the owner's price, that will carry him from fifty thousand to a hundred thousand miles over the earth's surface with very little expense.

There's a Jungle in New York

Africa Cannot Match It

Copyright, 1923, Star Co.

It is not necessary for the Prince of Wales or our young American friend, Paul Rainey, owner of many coke ovens in America, to go to Africa or Asia to enjoy themselves in the savage jungle. They could go to the East Side of New York or any other big modern city and find a jungle more exciting, interesting and DANGEROUS.

Jack Kaplan, called "Kid Dropper" because he could drop his gun so suddenly, left court and started to bail out his brother.

"Kid Dropper" never again saw that brother. Mr. Lewis Cohen, of another gang, fired through the back of a taxicab into which the "Dropper" stepped and killed him instantly.

Recently a dozen of the "Dropper's" gang enemies gathered in front of the undertaker's shop where his body lay and performed an Indian war dance until the police gathered them in.

"Big Tim" Sullivan, who knew New York, said "I can have any man killed in New York city for $50." That's a jungle.

The Ku Kluxers' Mistake

K. C. Is N t Very Dig stible

Copyright, 1923, Star Co.

Gentlemen of the Ku Klux Klan seem to have made a mistake in selecting the Catholic Knights of Columbus as their especial prey and publicly notifying the Klan to "come prepared to handle the K. C."

The K. C. as an opponent appears to be indigestible and unreasonable

One Irish gentleman, asked what family he sprang from, replied, "None at all; we sprang AT them

That appears to be the K. C. line of descent

It is just as well, however, that the fighting Ku Klux did pick out the K. C. If you must have a fight, a good one is desirable.

Vox Populi

By Silas Bertram Lee

Mr. Davis, a big lawyer, says any proposal to restrict the power of the Supreme Court is "an attack on our theory of government under a written Constitution." That statement is itself an attack on our theory of government.

The people reserve the right to change the Constitution, which includes the right to restrict the power of the Supreme Court. To deny that right is an attack on the supreme power of the people. That power will remain supreme, however able corporation lawyers may seek to harness it.

If the people don't want the Supreme Court by bare majority of one to override the law-making power, they can stop it. And if they are intelligent, they WILL stop it.

AMERICANS LEAD IN AIRTRAVEL

PARIS, Sept. 10.—Americans lead the world in air travel, according to statistics just compiled by the French aerial navigation service. Of all the air passengers who left Le Bourget flying field, near Paris, during the month of July, 47 per cent were Americans. The largest number came from Britain, 27 per cent. Only 6 per cent were French citizens.

Loyal to South Boston

Editor Boston American:

As a resident of South Boston, I would like to know why it is that every time I mention my home town I am made to feel guilty? Surely it is not the worst place in Massachusetts although I will admit it has its faults. There are frequently scandals in the newspaper concerning its gangs," but what city or town in truthfully boast a 100 per cent record?

Many people who are so willing to denounce the old town have never made themselves acquainted with its attractions and have not met the older families who live up to their reputation of being loyal citizens, living according to the laws which govern them.

I do not like to boast, but I would like to see credit given where credit is due, and usually when it comes to a show-down South Boston is "right there" every time.

IT LOOKS AS THOUGH WE'LL HAVE COAL AFTER ALL

By Herbert Kaufman

PROVIDED cup and lip do not again slip, the coal strike is over.

Thank Pinchot, if furnace bins are filled this Winter America will indeed be bankrupt of ability when critical hours do not find such men to serve her.

And always remember that Coolidge was big enough to risk putting a powerful opponent before the Republican convention by making Pennsylvania's Governor sole mediator.

It's easy to recall several Presidents who wouldn't have allowed potential rivals a like chance to improve their political fortunes.

Now that the emergency seems past, let's think of permanent remedies for capital and labor strifes in the fuel fields. Necessities of life and commerce should all be placed under Federal jurisdiction. We may not be so lucky another time.

Japan is blessed, at least, in having her travail before cold weather sets in.

Other calamities, however, begin to threaten. Cholera is reported at Yokohama. Desperate, starving people, unable to restrain thirst and hunger, burrow into the ruins for decomposed bodies, devour the putrescent carcasses of fish, dogs and horses, consume offal, and, blind to consequences, drink from corpse-polluted ponds and streams.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON BY AIR AND ON FOOT

By Garrett P. Serviss

A GENTLEMAN from Texas who was a fellow-voyager of mine on the steamship Nieuw Amsterdam, this Summer, was going to Paris to meet his daughter, who had been making a trip around the world. When the ship touched at Plymouth harbor, England, at 8 o'clock one morning, I disembark her passengers bound for London, my friend was awakened by a knock on his cabin door and a cheerful and familiar voice calling "Papa!"

The girl, in the most up-to-date spirit of modern tourism, had flown by aeroplane from Paris to London and, catching a night express train bound for the toe of England, had reached Plymouth just in time to take the tender going out after the Nieuw Amsterdam's English passengers and thus give her father "the biggest surprise of his life since Texas struck oil."

This is a good example of the part that aerial navigation is beginning to play in connecting up the loose ends of world-travel and enabling voyagers to mock the railroad schedules and defy formerly insuperable obstacles on both land and sea. The famous Channel passage has lost its terrors for those whose nerves are stronger than their stomachs.

In France "tourisme aerien" is much talked about, and it offers to open up to travellers places that have hitherto been more or less difficult of access. Lofty enclosed valleys and even mountain peaks are no longer to be the exclusive reserves of tourists who have abundance of time and are endowed with stout legs and steady heads. In the high Alps a bold pilot may now carry a friend or two over the summits of Mont Blanc and Monte Rosa, with only the blue air above their heads and a moon-like world of white and black below. It is an astronomical glimpse of the earth, a little closer than any that an astronomer ever gets of the surface of another planet.

But this kind of espial, though wondrous and exciting, is not satisfying. When the astronomer sees the mountains and valleys of the moon with his telescope, he feels a desire to drop through the "optic tube," like Alice through the looking-glass in order to get actually in that strange world. He is outside of it and no increase of magnifying power will do more than carry him closer to the tops of the ragged pinnacles and ridges. In a few hours one might pass in an airship the entire length of the beautiful chain of the Pyrenees, between France and Spain, and the trip would furnish one of the great memories of a lifetime; yet two voyages would have to spend weeks in those mountains, on foot and on wheel, in order really to know the Pyrenees, which, all things considered, are perhaps the most fascinating mountains on the earth.

The aerial traveler learns little of the topography of a country that he soars over. After all the pleasure of this world is locked up in its details. You take an express train, a fast steamer or an aeroplane to get quickly and easily from one detail or group of details to another. I would like to go around the world, just once, by airship. Then I would want to repeat the trip on foot. The first round would be a sensation; the second an education.

HEROINES OF HISTORY

THE "MAID OF NORWAY"

IN the thirteenth century the Norwegians laid claim and siege to the islands around the northern part of Scotland. During the conflict they made a night attack on the Scottish army encamped on the shore.

The Norsemen were barefoot, and as they stealthily crept up to wage battle on the Scots, one of the soldiers stepped on a thistle and cried out. His shout of pain warned the Scots of the presence of their enemy and they drove the Norsemen into the sea, and held the islands, which are part of Scotland today.

It was because of this incident that the thistle was adopted as the national emblem of Scotland.

At this time the brave King Alexander III., who was valiantly leading his troops, was killed when his horse stumbled and both rider and horse were hurled over a precipice.

The only heir of King Alexander was his little grandchild, Margaret, the daughter of Eric, King of Norway, and it is as "The Maid of Norway" that this little child, who formed a peculiar link in the chain of Scottish history, is known.

Margaret was born in 1283 in Norway and in 1290, when she was but seven years old, was told that on her head would be placed the crown of Scotland. Without delay preparations were made for her voyage across the sea to the kingdom over which she expected to rule.

The little queen, accompanied by many nobles, warriors and ladies-in-waiting, set sail for Scotland, but she was never to put her little foot on Scottish soil. During the voyage the child was taken desperately ill, while the ship on which she was traveling was nearing the islands of Orkney in the far north.

To allay her suffering, instead of proceeding to Scotland, the ship was steered into a harbor in the Orkneys and there anchored.

The little Queen-to-be was carried ashore and in a very short while the poor child died.

Had she lived, perhaps the history of Scotland would not have been as complicated nor as stormy as it was on account of her death.

For now was the time when many of the barons organized armies, each proclaiming his right to the throne of Scotland.

Here was the opportunity for King Edward I. of England to declare that the kings of Scotland were the vassals of the Kings of England. His army invaded Scotland, caused distress and set up a bloody warfare between the two nations.

PROMISED THE CROWN.

Toward the end of Edward's life, the great Robert Bruce rose up, proclaimed the Scottish crown as his own and rallied the Scottish chiefs around him for their great fight for Scottish independence.

If the little Maid of Norway had lived, this thrilling epoch in the history of Scotland might never have been recorded as one of the most romantic periods of all time.

The Jolly Rivalry of the Cities for the Crown of "Miss America"

Bathing Beauties from Maine and Alaska, Florida and California Vie in a Countrywide Contest That Dwarfs the Famous Three-Sided Affair Presided Over by Paris.

Here They Are—Some of the Long Line of Inter-City Beauties Who Will Compete for America's "Golden Mermaid" at the Atlantic City Pageant.

MISS AMERICA'S RULES FOR BEAUTY

THE judgment of Paris weighed the charms of only three beauties—Venus, Minerva and Juno. They were the loveliest women among the immortals of Greece, and the award of the Golden Apple inspired poets of all ages.

But bards of the future will sing of a greater judgment. Their lyrics will tell the tale of hundreds and hundreds of lovely women—as many as a thousand in all—in the greatest assemblage of beautiful womanhood ever gathered in the history of all the world.

From North, South, East and West they will come—one from every State in America and from Canada—to compete for the prize that has taken the place of the Golden Apple. It is an exquisite statuette made of pure gold, called "The Mermaid," and its possession will bestow the title of "The Most Beautiful Bathing Girl in America!" And this, declare hundreds of the lovely ones now hurrying toward the nation's playground, Atlantic City, where the contest is to be held, is ever and ever so much more spectacular than to be called merely the prettiest the final word in the moving picture world-fairy-

Decision in this enormous festival of beauty will not be entrusted to a single mortal, as it was in those ancient days. Instead there will be a jury of four such connoisseurs of feminine pulchritude as Howard Chandler Christy, Charles Dana Gibson, Neysa McMein and Norman Rockwell. And the honorary chairman of this company of illustrious talesmen is none other than the final word in the moving picture world fairy-land as it is of feminine pulchritude—Will H. Hays!

Now once upon a time bathing was considered an exclusively sea—or lake—side amusement. One couldn't swim without water, and therefore the girls—and boys, too, for that matter—who lived in certain parts of the flat country of the Middle West or on the perpendicular sides of the farther West, or in any number of places ranged these United States were plainly out of luck.

But ideas and times have changed. There are swimming beaches from Maine to California and from Hudson's Bay country to the Gulf. Wherever a rivulet runs or a pool may be dug there is a place to swim. Today it stands as the most universal of all sports ever to be loved by Americans.

And of course upon every beach and at every poolside there is the "prettiest girl." And she is the one who has been selected by popular vote to journey to the tournament, the third of its kind to be staged upon the gleaming sands of Atlantic City's far-famed bathing beach.

From Alaska will journey the dog-sled and train a girl of sturdy build, symmetry and strength in every line of her body; strength of the pioneer adventurers who braved the eternal snows in search of the treasures that lie buried in that land of midnight suns.

Golden hair, gray-green eyes, vivid cheeks—these characterize this straightforward maiden, whose direct handshake is like that of a man. She is innocent of the coquetry and drawing-room arts of more effete latitudes.

Miss New Orleans will bow before a cheering audience. With the slender, aristocratic form of her French and Spanish ancestors, she flashes dark eyes, in whose depths lurk all the charm of the alluring women of the South. She knows how powerful is the weapon of coquetry. The daughter of the Conquistadores displays all the color and charm for which her land is celebrated. Hers is the beauty of virginity, hers the ancestors whose swords quickly flashed in defense of home and honor. Romance enfolds her like a bright shawl.

Miss Los Angeles, a daughter of the Golden West, whose sun-kissed hair reflects the rays of the setting sun, will smile at the enthusiastic throngs who applaud her animation and the exquisite grace of her face and form, renowned in that city of loveliness.

Miss Chicago Displays the Charms That Led to Her Selection as the Representative of the Mid-Western Metropolis.

Miss San Francisco, a girl from the Golden Gate, will proclaim that brunettes also attain perfection on our western coast, and announce that a queen of the "Tournament of Roses" challenges the beauties from the East.

The Middle West won a prize last year when Miss Minneapolis drew the award for the greatest beauty of any girl appearing in the Roller Chair Parade, a picturesque feature of the pageant. A tall, stately blonde, with classic features, she sat like Ceres, the Goddess of Grain, in a chair representing an ear of golden corn.

From New England will come a Puritan maid. Having laid aside the garb of "Priscilla," she will be revealed in a bathing suit that displays a form as straight as those pines which contributed mainmasts to the ships of old Gloucester.

Nor is the Dominion of Canada excluded from the exhibition. Miss Toronto and Miss Montreal will cross the broad St. Lawrence to vie with the beauties of "The States." Miss Canada, crowned as the Empire's Queen of Beauty, will display the charms of our friendly neighbor and compete with our own finest.

Girls with cheeks like Oregon's ruddy apples will vie with a Georgia peach from Macon. The Quaker maid, representing Philadelphia, has been chosen by a jury including Mrs. Barclay Warburton, the daughter of the late John Wanamaker. Mrs. Warburton will select the wardrobe from the stores of all the merchants of the Quaker City, since all have thrown open their most precious wares to the choice of Miss Philadelphia.

The beauties who will gather in this gigantic contest are grouped in various classes. There is that of the amateur beauties, including any girl over sixteen who wished to enter the contest. Another class is made of noted screen and stage actresses, as well as artists' models and girls posing in other professions. But of course the spectacular class is that of the Inter-City beauties, representing their municipalities.

Because of the large number of entries the country has been divided into five zones—North, South, East, West and Middle West. During the pageant the judges will choose the two most beautiful from each zone, and these ten will appear in the final competition for the Golden Mermaid. Another prize, a silver seashell, will go to the loveliest amateur not among the Inter-City beauties. There are various other trophies, and a Golden Key will be presented to each of the Inter-City beauties.

Miss Margaret Gorman, of Washington, a petite blonde, even below the age and form of maturity, captured the prize the first year of the pageant. Last year's prize-winner, who will be this year's Queen of the Carnival, was Miss Mary Katherine Campbell, of Columbus, Ohio—now known as Miss America.

Miss Campbell is brown-eyed, with a dimple in either cheek and red lips that part to reveal gleaming white teeth. Her perfectly modeled profile is more attractive because of splendid coloring.

Of course, Miss Campbell will compete this year with the new daughters of Venus. And if she should again be adjudged the fairest, she will be crowned as Queen by Hudson Maxim, the famous inventor, who will impersonate Neptune. Mr. Maxim's patriarchial beard and benign countenance endow him with a look of perfect "make-up" for the part.

Miss Campbell will enter as "Miss America."

Medbury Says—

By John P. Medbury

ONE of the worst pests in this country is the guy who jumps into your automobile and says, "Gee, this is a beautiful car you've got, let me drive it, will you?"

YOU let him drive it and then he finds lamp posts that you never knew were in town.

SURE, he knows how to drive a Cadillac—his brother used to own a Ford.

MAYBE he strips the gears but they're underneath the car where it won't show.

HE kills the engine and a street car smashes into you. He laughs and says, "We ought to be glad it wasn't a train."

THEN he drives in the wrong direction and the traffic cop gives you a ticket. All the pest has to say is, "It's too bad this didn't happen yesterday, because it then."

HE tells you he has a friend who knows the chief of police, but he can't do you any good because he was sent to jail this morning for speeding.

THEN he'll say, "Don't worry, it's only cost you ten or fifteen bucks."

THE only people he hasn't run over yet are you and your wife, and that's because you happen to be in the car.

HE speeds seventy miles an hour and then looks back to see if the car is tied to anything.

THE next thing he does is show you how he can drive with his hands in his lap.

HOW ABOUT YOUR NEXT VACATION?

Perhaps your vacation is over. You have spent more money than you ought to have spent and you are having a hard time to pay your debts and running expenses.

You did a lot of foolish and extravagant things while you were away in an effort to convince others of your good financial standing.

Now you are worrying and stewing, wondering how you are going to catch up.

Was the impression favorable—if you did succeed in making one, and is it worth what it is costing you?

Would it not have been better—more sensible, for you to have spent as your means warranted and come home with some money ahead instead of being situated as you now find yourself?

Why should you allow vacation time to pile up worry and care for you?

If you have good sense you will begin today to lay aside for the next vacation, a proportionately suitable sum, each week, and then when the recreation period arrives keep your expenses down to the sum which you have been able to put away for it.

One night recently at a show, there was a girl sitting directly in front of me. Believing her to be a friend of mine, I spoke to her, but she evidently didn't hear me. So I ran my fingers lightly across her neck and when she turned around quickly, I found that she was not the girl I had thought she was. I was so embarrassed I did not know what to say nor do for a time.
